iPad are increasingly used in classrooms to support student reading. This study used a survey, interviews, observations, and document collection to better understand how students' experiences with iPads and printed texts shaped their learning in reading. I explored the following research questions: How do students describe their preferences and reading comprehension when using iPads vs. printed texts? Does reading engagement differ when reading printed text vs. on an iPad? What do the data show about differences in reading comprehension for my students when using iPads vs. printed texts? The findings suggest: 1) students enjoy reading both printed books and digital texts from the iPad in my classroom with a slight preference for reading from the iPad; 2) students are distracted during reading by other students, noise, the teacher, and insects in the classroom; and 3) students have distracted reading behaviors especially when reading on the iPad. When comparing both media, reading comprehension data suggests higher reading comprehension when reading printed books vs. iPad-based digital texts. Implications for teacher practice include providing access to both digital and printed texts and making sound decisions as teachers about when to use different media for reading.
