necessity for refined measurements and many valuable devices to accomplish this desired result have been added by members of the force BASE BARS The Duplex bars invented by Assistant William Eimbeck and constructed by E G Fischer are probably the best form of base bars ever devised and gave a very high degree of precision but they were soon replaced by the tape as a form of base apparatus The only bar used in the United States and probably in the world which gives entire satisfaction so far as accuracy is concerned is the iced bar designed by President R S Woodward of the Carnegie Institution when an assistant in the Survey Owing to the great cost per kilometer indexed Not illustrated 1884 edition Excerpt weight From remote antiquity the arithmetical mean of the measurements has always been regarded as the best or most probable value of the quantity sought and as shown in Art 44 this is confirmed by the fundamental principle of the Method of Least Squares Let z be the most probable value of the measured quantity n the number of observations and M any observation Let r be the probable error of a single observation and r_a the probable error of the adjusted value z Let also v be any residual obtained by subtracting M from z The most probable value of the quantity is the arithmetical mean expressed as in Art 44 by formula 8 z The probable error of a single observation as shown in Art 65 is by formula 20 Lastly as shown in Art 64 the probable error of the mean is by 19 r/n Formula 8 indicates the method of adjustment while 20 and 19 determine the precision of observation and of the mean After finding z each observation is subtracted from it giving n values of v The squares of these are taken and their sum is Sz^2 then r is computed and lastly r_0 If desired r_0 can be also found directly from formula 21 which is the same as 19 81 As an example consider the following twenty four measurements of an angle of the primary triangulation of the United States Coast Survey made at the station Pocasset in Massachusetts and recorded in the Report for 1854 The most probable value of the angle is found by adding the observations and dividing the sum by twenty four This is 116 43 49 64 Subtracting from this the first reading gives 5 19 for the first residual which is placed in the column headed v The square of this is 26 94 which is placed in the column headed v^2 The sum of all these
