The field of educational research has grown and changed since the 1950s. Advances in technology, including the Internet, have provided access to educational research and information previously unavailable. In the 1970s and 1980s, the focus of research shifted from the individual student to the social context of the student. Research in the 1990s and 2000s has focused on the social and cultural context of the student, including the role of the family, the community, and the school. This research has led to a better understanding of the factors that influence student achievement and has provided a foundation for the development of effective educational practices.
