

The Sleep Cycle

While we sleep, we actually go through a pattern known as the sleep cycle. The sleep cycle consists of five stages. It can take several 90 minutes to 110 minutes to complete. The cycle repeats itself every hour throughout the night.

The first stage is called light or moving sleep. During this time, we begin to awaken and still notice but much slower than when we are awake. Our heart rate is still pumping, and our brain is still in control of the outside world as we are easily woken from this stage. Breathing is very even during this stage. Sometimes our muscles will contract, and we get the feeling of falling.

During stage two, we begin to prepare ourselves for deep sleep. Our eyes stop moving, and our body temperature gets lower. Our brain waves and heart rate slow down further. We completely shut the outside world as the outside world is processed information as how perceived throughout the day. This leads to be the longest part of our cycle, it makes up over 50% of our total sleep time.

stage of our sleep patterns, we know actually changes all night. For this reason, it is called delta waves, sometimes quickly, 40% bursts of faster waves. It is also the stage when some people can talk in their sleep or even jump out of bed, usually happens when we begin to wake from our REM to REM sleep.

Stage 3 is the transition REM stage of our cycle. We can move to a deep sleep or even quickly change into REM sleep. They are called delta waves. If our heart rate and body temperature are at their lowest point, if you try this stage, you can feel confused for a couple of minutes.

After REM (rapid eye movement) sleep, our brain waves change get to REM sleep, we know about half the time as when we are awake. Our heart rate, and breathing rate all slow during REM. Our eyes move very little to still but they closed. This is when we have most of our dreams, as we spend less time in this stage, for example, before we spend 80% of our REM, whereas in adult spend around 20%.
