Script Melancholia Lars Von Trier:

The Apocalypse in Film Karen A. Ritzenhoff, Angela Krewani, 2015-12-30 We live in a world at risk Dire predictions about our future or the demise of planet earth persist Even fictional representations depict narratives of decay and the end of a commonly shared social reality Along with recurring Hollywood blockbusters that imagine the end of the world there has been a new wave of zombie features as well as independent films that offer various visions of the future The Apocalypse in Film Dystopias Disasters and Other Visions about the End of the World offers an overview of Armageddon in film from the silent era to the present This collection of essays discusses how such films reflect social anxieties ones that are linked to economic ecological and cultural factors Featuring a broad spectrum of international scholars specializing in different historical genres and methodologies these essays look at a number of films including the silent classic The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse the black comedy Dr Strangelove or How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb the Mayan calendar disaster epic 2012 and in particular Lars Von Trier s Melancholia the focus of several essays As some filmmakers translate the anxiety about a changing global climate and geo political relations into visions of the apocalypse others articulate worries about the planet s future by depicting chemical warfare environmental disasters or human made destruction This book analyzes the emergence of apocalyptic and dystopic narratives and explores the political and social situations on which these films are based Contributing to the dialogue on dystopic culture in war and peace The Apocalypse in Film will be of interest to scholars in film and media studies border studies gender studies sociology and political science Lars von Trier

Beyond Depression Linda Badley, 2022-02-15 Lars von Trier built a reputation as a provocateur from the start but in the late 2000s he entered an even more inflammatory phase Amid Cannes controversies Antichrist 2009 Melancholia 2011 Nymphomaniac 2013 14 and The House That Jack Built 2018 brandished the cinematic virtuosity von Trier once banned under the Dogme 95 Manifesto while subjecting audiences to extreme cinema Following von Trier s experience of clinical depression in 2006 and 2007 these films took an aggressively personal and retrospective turn against the backdrop of the director s controversy courting public appearances Playing against widespread assumptions Linda Badley takes a reparative approach offering an in depth examination of these four films and the contexts that produced them Drawing on numerous interviews with the director and his collaborators as well as inside access to archival materials she provides a thorough and comprehensive account of von Trier s preproduction and creative process Highlighting a transmedial turn Badley tracks von Trier s artistic touchstones from Wagner Proust and the Marquis de Sade to Scandinavian erotic cinema and serial killer genre tropes She considers his portrayals of mental illness and therapy gender and sexuality nature and extinction shedding light on the thematic concerns that unite these films as a distinct cycle Offering nuanced readings of these films the book emphasizes the significance of von Trier s work for current critical and philosophical debates showing how they engage with notions of the Anthropocene dark ecology and the postcinematic Politics, Theory, and Film Bonnie Honig, Lori J.

Marso,2016-08-26 Lars von Trier's intense disturbing and sometimes funny films have led many to condemn him as misogynist or misanthropic. The same films inspire this collection's reflections on how our fears and desires regarding gender, power, race, finitude, family, and fate often thwart and sometimes feed our best democratic aspirations. The essays in this volume attend to von Trier's role as provocateur, as well as to his films' techniques, topics, and storytelling. Where others accuse von Trier of being clichéd, the editors argue that he intensifies the clichés of our times in ways that direct our political energies towards apprehending and repairing a shattered world. The book is certainly for von Trier lovers and haters, but at the same time, political, critical, and feminist theorists entirely unfamiliar with von Trier's films will find this volume's essays of interest. Most of the contributors tarry with von Trier to develop new readings of major thinkers and writers, including Agamben, Bataille, Beauvoir, Benjamin, Deleuze, Euripides, Freud, Kierkegaard, Rancière, Nietzsche, Winnicott, and many more. Von Trier is both central and irrelevant to much of this work. Writing from the fields of classics, literature, gender studies, philosophy, film, and political theory, the authors stage an interdisciplinary intervention in film studies.

Knowing It When You See It Patrick O'Donnell,2021-02-01 Perched as he was at the beginning of literary modernism and the evolution of film as a medium, Henry James addressed a cluster of epistemological and aesthetic issues related to the visualization of reality. In Knowing It When You See It, Patrick O'Donnell compares several late novels and stories by Henry James with a series of films directed by Michael Haneke, Alfred Hitchcock, Quentin Tarantino, Christopher Nolan, and Lars Von Trier. O'Donnell argues that these issues find parallels in films made at the other end of an arc extending from the last decades of the nineteenth century to the initial years of the twenty-first. In mapping affinities between literature and film, he is not concerned with adaptation or discursivity, but rather with how the visual is represented in two mediums, with how seeing becomes knowledge, how framing what is seen becomes a critical part of the story that is conveyed, and how the perspective of the camera or the narrator shapes reality. Both James and these later auteurs think visually in ways that interilluminate their fictions and films and newly bring into relief the trajectory of modernity in relation to visuality.
