Beyond open access: visions for open evaluation of scientific papers by post-publication peer review Nikolaus Kriegeskorte, Diana Deca, A scientific publication system needs to provide two basic services access and evaluation The traditional publication system restricts the access to papers by requiring payment and it restricts the evaluation of papers by relying on just 2-4 pre publication peer reviews and by keeping the reviews secret As a result the current system suffers from a lack of quality and transparency of the peer review evaluation process and the only immediately available indication of a new paper's quality is the prestige of the journal it appeared in Open access is now widely accepted as desirable and is slowly beginning to become a reality However the second essential element evaluation has received less attention Open evaluation an ongoing post publication process of transparent peer review and rating of papers promises to address the problems of the current system However it is unclear how exactly such a system should be designed The evaluation system steers the attention of the scientific community and thus the very course of science For better or worse the most visible papers determine the direction of each field and guide funding and public policy decisions Evaluation therefore is at the heart of the entire endeavor of science As the number of scientific publications explodes evaluation and selection will only gain importance A grand challenge of our time therefore is to design the future system by which we evaluate papers and decide which ones deserve broad attention So far scientists have left the design of the evaluation process to journals and publishing companies However the steering mechanism of science should be designed by scientists The cognitive computational and brain sciences are best prepared to take on this task which will involve social and psychological considerations software design and modeling of the network of scientific papers and their interrelationships This Research Topic in Frontiers in Computational Neuroscience collects visions for a future system of open evaluation Because critical arguments about the current system abound these papers will focus on constructive ideas and comprehensive designs for open evaluation systems Design decisions include Should the reviews and ratings be entirely transparent or should some aspects be kept secret Should other information such as paper downloads be included in the evaluation How can scientific objectivity be strengthened and political motivations weakened in the future system Should the system include signed and authenticated reviews and ratings Should the evaluation be an ongoing process such that promising papers are more deeply evaluated How can we bring science and statistics to the evaluation process e.g. should rating averages come with error bars How should the evaluative information about each paper e.g. peer ratings be combined to prioritize the literature Should different individuals and organizations be able to define their own evaluation formulae e.g. weighting ratings according to different criteria How can we efficiently transition toward the future system Ideally the future system will derive its authority from a scientific literature on community based open evaluation We hope that these papers will provide a starting point

Aerospace Health and Safety: Today and the Future Irina Mordukhovich, Mardi A. Crane-Godreau, Eileen Mcneely, Christopher Scheibler, 2023-11-20 Aviation plays vital roles in commerce defense science and leisure travel Irrespective of the purpose of flight crew and passengers are challenged by exposure to a variety of environmental conditions that can differ widely from work and travel environments on the surface of the Earth With anticipated changes in aviation and space technology new challenges to health and safety of crew and passengers can be expected In this Research Topic we welcome contributions from those whose work and interests are relevant to the health and safety of crew and passengers This includes but is not limited to health and safety professionals FAA examiners corporate medical officers aerospace and occupational physicians physiologists military and scientific team members public health professionals as well as engineers who are tasked with crew and passenger health and safety design projects While 4 1 billion passengers fly on commercial airlines annually and this figure is even higher when taking into account privately owned aircraft and military flight for the most part aviation is safe Passengers do arrive at their destinations with little concern to their own well being and flight is generally well tolerated However older flyers people with diagnosed or undiagnosed preexisting disease and other vulnerable passengers such as young children and pregnant women may be at risk of complications and crew may be at special risk due to the frequency and duration of their many flight related exposures Health and safety issues for crew and passengers include but are not limited to potentially severe circadian rhythm disruption potential health effects of low level cosmic ionizing radiation exposure at altitude reduced oxygen delivery and tissue hypoxia at cabin pressurization cabin air contamination by engine gases toxic materials used in uniforms and some cabin seat materials occupational noise pesticides used for cabin disinsection lack of adequate crew rest on layovers or between flights cardiovascular demands of flight and effects of flight related dehydration the current absence of screening protocols especially in the context of a rising number of elderly and vulnerable flyers lack of healthy nutrition at airports and in flight availability of food and hydration as well as adequate cabin temperature under delay conditions effects of alcohol use on flight related physiological and behavioral health risks anxiety and psychological distress associated with air travel the effects of long haul or ultra long haul flights on thromboembolic events as well as smoking cessation efforts and related psychological outcomes job related stress and harassment among crew Cosmic ionizing and non ionizing radiation exposure have drawn attention as have historic exposures of crew and passengers to second hand cigarette smoke The threat of political and interpersonal violence and altercations involving aviation cannot be overlooked On board medical emergencies run a wide gamut and the capacity to respond becomes more problematic as the duration of flights becomes longer or in the case of flight over oceans and the poles In addition in flight and post flight embolisms and myocardial infarctions are more prevalent than might be expected We hence encourage manuscripts that address in flight medical response including the capabilities on different types of aircraft on potential interventions by crew and medical volunteers In addition aviation as a vector for the carriage of disease is a significant concern to public health and security of populations world wide and we welcome submissions regarding infectious disease epidemiology and medicine as it relates to air travel Insects and occasional unplanned travel by birds and rodents can present additional public health concerns We are approaching an era where space travel may soon be increasingly common Future flights for near Earth orbit by leisure travelers and as well as travel to the moon and Mars raise a host of new questions with health and safety implications What are the proposed health and safety accommodations going to be Who will be allowed to travel Perhaps the most interesting question is who will make the rules
