My First Talent Show

Standing backstage, I could feel my heart thumping in my chest. "Just relax," my friend Jenny whispered. "You're ready for this." I nodded. Jenny was right. I'd been practicing my song for the school talent show for six weeks. Still, picturing an audience packed with kids, parents and teachers made me want to run out the door.

"Too late for that," I thought, as Mr. Peterson announced my song. Jenny gave me a nudge, and suddenly I was on the stage. Standing in the spotlight, I grasped the microphone and belted out the lyrics. I heard my voice pour through the speakers and fill the room. "It's going well," I thought to myself. "Don't mess up."

I looked out at the sea of faces. The auditorium was dark, but I could see hundreds of eyes staring back at me. The smell of candy bars and popcorn filled the room. "I hope Jenny is saving some for me," I thought, as I started the chorus one last time.

As I finished the song, the audience began to clap. "Yeah, Katie!" one kid yelled. "You rock!" screeched another. I took a bow and walked offstage with a smile plastered across my face. "How many days until next year's talent show?" I asked Jenny.

In the introduction, the writer describes what happened first.

The writer includes details about what he or she was thinking.

The writer describes what happened next.

In the conclusion, the writer describes what happened last.

Holdstein, David Bleich, 2002 Holdstein and Bleich compile a volume that cuts across the grain of current orthodoxy These editors and contributors argue that it is fundamental in humanistic scholarship to take account of the personal and collective experiences of scholars researchers critics and teachers They contend that humanistic inquiry cannot develop successfully at this time without reference to the varieties of subjective inter subjective and collective experience of teachers and researchers In composition studies they point out an important strand of theory has continuously mined the personal experience of individual writers where they stand even in a destabilised sense of that idea Such substantive accounts of the inner academic life provide appropriate and rich contexts for further study and analysis With this volume then these scholars move us to explore the intersections of the social with subjectivity with voice ideology and culture and to consider the roles of these in the work of academics who study writing and literature Taken together the essays in this collection carry forward the idea that the personal the candidly subjective and inter subjective must be part of the subject of study in humanities scholarship They propose an understanding of the personal in scholarship that is more helpful because more clearly
