Whiteness Interrupted Marcus Bell, 2021-06-28 In Whiteness Interrupted Marcus Bell presents a revealing portrait of white teachers in majority black schools in which he examines the limitations of understandings of how white racial identity is formed Through in depth interviews with dozens of white teachers from a racially segregated urban school district in Upstate New York Bell outlines how whiteness is constructed based on localized interactions and takes a different form in predominantly black spaces He finds that in response to racial stress in a difficult teaching environment white teachers conceptualized whiteness as a stigmatized category predicated on white victimization When discussing race outside majority black spaces Bell s subjects characterized American society as postracial in which race seldom affects outcomes Conversely in discussing their experiences within predominantly black spaces they rejected the idea of white privilege often angrily and instead focused on what they saw as the racial privilege of blackness Throughout Bell underscores the significance of white victimization narratives in black spaces and their repercussions as the United States becomes a majority minority society
