Properties of Matter

Introduction

Are you able to describe, how these particles are related?

- Why are solids, liquids and gaseous grouped together?
- Why are substances and mixtures classified together?

What Are Physical Properties?

Look at the table in the chapter below to find out as many physical properties of four common substances.

If physical properties of substances are observed without changing the identity of the substance, these are physical properties of an object or matter. For example, you can identify an object with colour, shape, size, or weight. In general, the properties of an object are determined by the particles of the substance the object is made of.

Many of the physical properties of materials that make up objects can be changed. These properties include strength, hardness, magnetism, and the ability to conduct heat and electricity.

Some physical properties depend on how much of a material you have. In other words, a large amount of a material may have different properties from smaller amounts of the material. Other physical properties do not depend on how much of the material you have. They show that no matter how large or small a sample of material is, the particular property is always the same.

LEARNING OBJECTIVE

Identify, as given, the materials or objects having characteristic physical properties and mixtures and substances having similar physical properties.

LOOKING CLOSER

1. Identify four more properties of physical properties of matter.

ACTIVITY 1

1. Identify other substances having physical properties.
