GIRLS® Freya India, 2026-02-26 Anyone who cares about the girls and young women in their lives should read GIRLS Jonathan Haidt author of The Anxious Generation GIRLS Gen Z and the Commodification of Everything is a passionate provocative and deeply personal journey into the pressures shaping young lives today Freya India shows that age old anxieties of girlhood are now being amplified by modern life and exploited like never before While previous generations of women were relentlessly sold products and procedures we have become the product We display our lives on Instagram advertise ourselves on dating apps and package ourselves into personal brands making anxiety feel overwhelming and unmanageable We have transformed from girls into GIRLS from people into products Each chapter of GIRLS focuses on a common anxiety in adolescent girls lives from insecurities about our faces and bodies to our reputation and social status to our friendships and romantic relationships Along the way India traces how rapidly culture and technology have evolved over the past decade This isn't just a book for girls For young women it offers a nostalgic if unsettling reflection on the world they've grown up in and reassurance that they're not alone in their struggles For younger girls it provides context for where these challenges began and warns where they might be headed And for parents teachers and older generations it serves as a reminder that these issues have never been so intense GIRLS concludes with a message of hope reminding readers how to reclaim their privacy defend their dignity and above all return to being people instead of products

Food for Thought Colleen M. Heflin, Madonna Harrington Meyer, 2025-09-05 While food insecurity among households with children often makes the headlines a quieter issue that receives much less attention is the food insecurity faced by older adults In 2023 over nine percent of Americans age sixty and older were food insecure Without policy intervention that number is only expected to grow as the U S population continues to age In Food for Thought social policy scholar Colleen M Heflin and sociologist Madonna Harrington Meyer illuminate the challenges faced by food insecure older adults Through analysis of national data sets and interviews with lower income older adults Heflin and Harrington Meyer describe why many older adults do not have enough money to afford food and other essentials As a result of chronic economic disadvantage food insecure older adults are often forced to make budget trade offs between food and other expenses In these trade offs food typically ranks below housing and energy costs and competes with other household bills such as medical costs transportation and phone and internet coverage While finances play a large role nonfinancial factors such as poor physical cognitive and mental health access to healthy food and transportation challenges also contribute to food insecurity in old age In the face of these difficulties food insecure older adults may go hungry skip meals or eat unhealthy foods to help make ends meet While SNAP and community based programs such as food pantries and home delivered meals are intended to help address the issue of food insecurity they are typically inadequate to address the needs of food insecure older adults SNAP has enrollment and maintenance procedures that are particularly difficult for older adults to navigate pays out an insufficient amount of money to cover food costs and varies greatly by state Availability of community programs varies by municipality often lacks nutritious foods that are complementary to health conditions common among older adults and can be difficult to access due to a lack of reliable transportation disability or cost Heflin and Harrington Meyer advocate for addressing all the issues that increase older adults risk of food insecurity not just financial barriers They suggest updating food insecurity screening tools to include these factors increasing SNAP benefits and income support for older adults and other policies to help combat food insecurity in older adults Food for Thought highlights the increasingly important issue of food insecurity in old age and lays bare the overlooked challenges faced by food insecure older adults
