

The Sleep Cycle

While we sleep, we actually go through a pattern known as the sleep cycle. The sleep cycle consists of five stages. It can take several 90 minutes to 110 minutes to complete. The cycle repeats itself every hour throughout the night.

The first stage is called light or moving sleep. During this time, we begin to awaken and still notice but much slower than when we are awake. Our heart rate is still pumping, and our brain is still in control of the outside world as we are easily woken from this stage. Breathing is very even during this stage. Sometimes our muscles will contract, and we get the feeling of falling.

During stage two, we begin to prepare ourselves for deep sleep. Our eyes stop moving, and our body temperature gets lower. Our brain waves and heart rate slow down further. We completely shut the outside world as the outside world is processed information as slow as during the day. This time is the longest part of our cycle. It makes up over 50% of our total sleep time.

After REM (rapid eye movement) sleep, the brain waves change get to REM sleep, we know about half the cycle is when we are awake. We feel tired, and thinking rate of our brain REM.
