Financing Terrorism Case Studies Hardback:

Financing Terrorism Michael Freeman, 2016-04-15 Without money terrorists cannot function as organizations and cannot conduct attacks Yet the questions remain how vulnerable are terrorists to financial disruptions Can governments put pressure on their finances in meaningful ways or are they too resilient and adaptive to be affected by state actions These and other questions about terrorism financing are vigorously debated by scholars and policymakers particularly since the attacks of September 11th 2001 While there is a growing literature on policy issues strategies and countermeasures states must first understand their enemies before developing strategies to defeat them So instead of focusing on the state response this book asks a more foundational question How do different terrorist groups actually raise money What are their budgets What do their portfolios look like How have they changed over time What are the advantages and disadvantages of different sources of financing The book includes case studies of 11 different terrorist groups or sets of groups within a country It is clear that each group has a different portfolio tailored to their needs and their environment and this makes countering terrorist financing more challenging for the state This topical book will be required reading for all students and scholars interested in terrorism financing as well as those working in government agencies tasked with combating terrorist groups and their financial resources

Banks as Security Actors Esmé Bosma, 2025-04-22 This book analyses how banks implement counter terrorist financing measures and experiment with technologies to assess risks and make security decisions Banks have become private security actors As gatekeepers of the financial system they are legally obliged to conduct customer research and monitor bank accounts for unusual or suspicious transactions Given the sheer volume of financial transactions that banks process daily detection of financial crime heavily relies on digital security technologies that help analysts categorise and identify risky customers and financial transactions Drawing from theories at the intersection of International Relations and Science and Technology Studies the book advances the concept of de scription to offer a framework for analysing experimentation with security and digital technologies in practice The research is based on fieldwork conducted in the financial crime sector in the Netherlands and the United Kingdom It explores how political and ethical choices materialise at the human technology interface and analyses the production of customer risk profiles the design and use of transaction monitoring systems and the emergence of public private partnerships to counter terrorist financing This book will be of interest to students and researchers in International Relations Science and Technology Studies and Critical Security Studies

Rationality and the Environment Bo Elling,2012-05-04 Environmental assessment and management involve the production of scientific knowledge and its use in decision making processes The result is that within these essentially rational political assessment frameworks experts are creating and applying scientific knowledge for decision and management purposes that actually have strong ethical and aesthetic dimensions Yet these rational political frameworks lack the tools to provide guidance on ethical and aesthetic issues that affect the wider public This revolutionary work argues that ethical and aesthetic dimensions can only be brought into environmental politics and policies by citizens actively taking a stand on the specific matters in question The author draws on Habermas trisection of rationality as cognitive instrumental moral practical and aesthetic expressive to suggest that truly effective environmental policy needs to activate all three approaches and not favour only the rational To achieve this objective the author argues that public participation in environmental policy and assessment is necessary to counteract the dictatorship of technical and economic instrumentality in environmental policy the failure to take ethical and aesthetic rationalities into account and more importantly how such policy is applied on the ground to shape our natural and material world
