Gender and Governance in Rural Services The World Bank, International Food Policy Research Institute, 2010-01-27
Gender and Governance in Rural Services provides policy relevant knowledge on strategies to improve agricultural and rural service delivery with a focus on providing more equitable access to these services especially for women. It focuses on India, Ethiopia, and Ghana and focuses on two public services: agricultural extension as an example of an agricultural service and on drinking water as an example of a rural service that is not directly related to agriculture but is of high relevance for rural women. It provides empirical, microlevel evidence on how different accountability mechanisms for agricultural advisory services and drinking water provision work in practice and analyzes factors that influence the suitability of different governance reform strategies that aim at making service provision more gender responsive. It presents major findings from the quantitative and qualitative research conducted under the project in the three countries, which are analyzed in a qualitative way to identify major patterns of accountability routes in agricultural and rural service provision and to assess their gender dimension. The book is intended for use by a wide audience interested in agricultural and rural service provision, including researchers, members of the public administration, policy makers, and staff from nongovernmental organizations, NGOs, and international development agencies who are involved in the design and management of reform efforts, projects, and programs dealing with rural service provision.
