

Additional Exercises for Chapter 4: Optimization

Stephen Boyd Lieven Vandenbergher
March 16, 2019

This set of exercises of additional problems) provided by supplementing those found in the book Convex Optimization, by Stephen Boyd and Lieven Vandenbergher. These exercises were used in several courses in convex optimization, ECE689a (Stanford), MIT6.035 (MIT), usually the second, and sometimes as more optional, third, of the exercises were originally written for the book, and were intended to have a role. Many of these include a computational component using MATLAB, a Matlab package for convex optimization, that replaced the other exercises and the third of the book and are now available, either separately, or as part of the process of extracting some of these problems to be incorporated with the other packages for convex optimization, CVXOPT (Python) and CVXOPT.jl (Julia). Many of the exercises require a knowledge of elementary calculus.

Though we do not use these exercises as part of the book, they are highly recommended for students who are interested in the subject, and especially as a way to gain experience with the theory and practice of optimization. The book is designed to be used as a reference, and the exercises are intended to be used as a way to gain experience with the theory and practice of optimization.
