Human Spatial Cognition and Experience Toru Ishikawa, 2020-06-15 This book offers students an introduction to human spatial cognition and experience and is designed for graduate and advanced undergraduate students who are interested in the study of maps in the head and the psychology of space We live in space and space surrounds us We interact with space all the time consciously or unconsciously and make decisions and actions based on our perceptions of that space Have you ever wondered how some people navigate perfectly using maps in their heads while other people get lost even with a physical map What do you mean when you say you have a poor sense of direction How do we know where we are How do we use and represent information about space This book clarifies that our knowledge and feelings emerge as a consequence of our interactions with the surrounding space and show that the knowledge and feelings direct guide or limit our spatial behavior and experience Space matters or more specifically space we perceive matters Research into spatial cognition and experience asking fundamental questions about how and why space and spatiality matters to humans has thus attracted attention It is no coincidence that the 2014 Nobel Prize in Physiology or Medicine was awarded for research into a positioning system in the brain or inner GPS and that spatial information and technology are recognized as an important social infrastructure in recent years This is the first book aimed at graduate and advanced undergraduate students pursuing this fascinating area of research The content introduces the reader to the field of spatial cognition and experience with a series of chapters covering theoretical empirical and practical issues including cognitive maps spatial orientation spatial ability and thinking geospatial information navigation assistance and environmental aesthetics The Cambridge Handbook of Visuospatial Thinking Priti Shah, Akira Miyake, 2005-07-25 The ability to navigate across town comprehend an animated display of the functioning of the human heart view complex multivariate data on a company's website or to read an architectural blueprint and form a three dimensional mental picture of a house are all tasks involving visuospatial thinking The field of visuospatial thinking is a relatively diverse interdisciplinary research enterprise An understanding of visuospatial thinking and in particular how people represent and process visual and spatial information is relevant not only to cognitive psychology but also education geography architecture medicine design computer science artificial intelligence semiotics and animal cognition The goal of this book first published in 2005 is to present a broad overview of research on visuospatial thinking that can be used by researchers as well as students interested in this topic in both basic research and applied naturalistic contexts
