afternoon in the summer of the year of grace 1651 Even late in the day the August sun was intolerably fierce Out in the open country the work of ripening corn and fruit was almost done here in London City the rays beat down into crowded alleys and narrow lanes and made them close and sultry like streets of an Eastern town But nowhere did the sunbeams rest more gaily than on the broad bosom of the river Thames They shone upon the stately palaces and beautiful gardens with which its banks were lined caught the edges of the leaves rustling in the breeze and sparkled in a thousand lights upon the rippled surface of the water There was scarcely a view in all England which for historic and picturesque interest could equal the sight from old London Bridge To the North rose the still graceful structure of St Paul's Cathedral The beautiful spire for centuries the pride of the City had been burnt down in the time of Queen Elizabeth and an insignificant tower substituted for it The South transept designed by Inigo Jones had been hastily pulled down by the Parliament for the sake of the scaffolding and part of the Cathedral with it and the interior had been sadly desecrated by the Puritans Still however to outward seeming the building was the noblest in London Close to the end of the bridge stood a confused mass of houses the hall and offices as we should now call them of the Fishmongers Guild About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections
