Development Law in the UK Andrea Ross,2013-03-01 Sustainable development is now widely accepted as a political objective in the UK and elsewhere but to what extent has the UK s rhetoric on sustainable development become a reality The aim of this book is to critically examine the UK s approach to promoting and delivering sustainable development It begins by providing a detailed account of UK law on sustainable development by reviewing the various policy institutional and legal mechanisms used by the UK since the 1980s and by devolved administrations since devolution took effect in 1999 Progress has been slow too slow and according to the scientists time is running out To deal with this lack of progress the book advocates increasing the status of ecological sustainability and sustainable development through the introduction of a wide range of legal mechanisms which would compel the change needed The book calls for ecological sustainability or respecting the Earth s environmental limits to be afforded the status of legal principle and argues that with ecological sustainability at its normative core sustainable development could provide an effective framework for decision making and governance It argues that to support this approach and ensure consistency the time has come for sustainable development to receive explicit legal backing Over and above its symbolic and educational value legislation can impose mandatory rules on policymakers and decision makers often with meaningful consequences both inside and outside the courtroom To this end the book contributes to the theory on sustainable development governance by suggesting three possible legislative approaches for such intervention The volume concludes that while a lack of leadership on sustainable development may hinder the introduction of these innovations once introduced these innovations would equally provide much needed support for effective leadership towards a sustainable future Andrea Ross is a Reader in the School of Law at the University of Dundee and has taught and researched in the areas of public and environmental law for over 18 years Before becoming an academic she qualified as a Barrister and Solicitor in Ontario Canada An Earthscan from Routledge book
