

BLOOD SPATTER

THE CASE OF THE MISSING WIFE a blood spatter investigation activity

GOAL: To use blood spatter patterns analysis to determine the height from which a blood sample was dropped.

BASE: In May, 2007, police received a 911 call from a Travis Paul Lechardt who stated that his wife had been missing for several days, disappearing without a trace. After several days of investigation, police located the Lechardt home looking for any clues that might lead to her. Mr. Lechardt's wife, Adrian, searching for several months, police noticed that the garage floor had been recently painted and there appeared to be small shot gun pellets in the ceiling and ceiling in the freshly painted garage floor. Upon closer examination, investigators noticed what appeared to be blood drops leading to a problem with superglue missing in his garage and the blood stains and shot gun pellets were in attempts to eradicate the superglue.

Initially, DNA was not able to be extracted from the stains since they had been painted, so the police must use blood stain analysis to determine if the blood stains were from spatters that he shot in the rafters of his garage or if the stains could have something to do with his wife's disappearance.

GOAL: Measure the diameter of bloodstains A-J under the "gender" on the front of the ruler. Be sure to measure in centimeters. Record your measurement in the table below.
