The Distance Cure

Hannah Zeavin,2021-08-17 Psychotherapy across distance and time from Freud's treatments by mail to crisis hotlines radio call ins chatbots and Zoom sessions Therapy has long understood itself as taking place in a room with two or more people engaged in person to person conversation And yet starting with Freud's treatments by mail psychotherapy has operated through multiple communication technologies and media These have included advice columns radio broadcasts crisis hotlines video personal computers and mobile phones the therapists broadly defined can be professional or untrained strangers or chatbots In The Distance Cure Hannah Zeavin proposes a reconfiguration of the traditional therapeutic dyad of therapist and patient as a triad therapist patient and communication technology Zeavin tracks the history of teletherapy understood as a therapeutic interaction over distance and its metamorphosis from a model of cure to one of contingent help She describes its initial use in ongoing care its role in crisis intervention and symptom management and our pandemic mandated reliance on regular Zoom sessions Her account of the distanced intimacy of the therapeutic relationship offers a powerful rejoinder to the notion that contact across distance or screens is always less useful or useless to the person seeking therapeutic treatment or connection At the same time these modes of care can quickly become a backdoor for surveillance and disrupt ethical standards important to the therapeutic relationship The history of the conventional therapeutic scenario cannot be told in isolation from its shadow form teletherapy Therapy Zeavin tells us was never just a talking cure it has always been a communication cure
