economists Robert E Litan and Martin Neil Baily and a distinguished group of experts dissect these issues and peer into the future of consumer payments The landscape of the consumer payments industry will be shaped at least in part by public policies Historically governments have had monopolies on the manufacture of money Any form of payment clearly requires trust on the part of both the seller and the buyer and the government must establish and enforce laws to secure this relationship More controversial is the issue of whether and to what extent government is also needed to protect the market in private sector payments systems Why do these issues matter The payments industry is a large and important sector of developed economies In the United States private sector payments providers generate approximately 280 billion a year in revenue while the government invests substantial resources into making money minting coins and printing bills or moving it via checks and various electronic transfers And the way we pay for things influences our purchases what we spend money on how much we spend and where we spend it Thus the future of consumer payments is intertwined with the health of national economies Contributors Martin Neil Baily Brookings Thomas P Brown O Melveny Myers Kenneth Chenault American Express Company Vijay D Silva McKinsey and Company Nicholas Economides New York University David S Evans Market Platform Dynamics Robert E Litan Brookings and Kaufmann Foundation Drazen Prelec Massachusetts Institute of Technology Richard Schmalensee Massachusetts Institute of Technology Global Mobile Commerce Wayne Huang, Yingluo Wang, John Day, 2008 This book provides a complete set of in depth research investigations on global m commerce strategies and technological standards as well as case studies on the subject that elucidate the research through real world examples It will prove to be a valuable reference to drive the current and future activities of academic researchers and practitioners alike Provided by publisher Understanding Computers Deborah Morley, Charles S.
