The Qualified Self Lee Humphreys, 2018-04-13 How sharing the mundane details of daily life did not start with Facebook Twitter and YouTube but with pocket diaries photo albums and baby books Social critiques argue that social media have made us narcissistic that Facebook Twitter Instagram and YouTube are all vehicles for me promotion In The Qualified Self Lee Humphreys offers a different view She shows that sharing the mundane details of our lives what we ate for lunch where we went on vacation who dropped in for a visit didn't begin with mobile devices and social media People have used media to catalog and share their lives for several centuries Pocket diaries photo albums and baby books are the predigital precursors of today's digital and mobile platforms for posting text and images The ability to take selfies has not turned us into needy narcissists it's part of a longer story about how people account for everyday life Humphreys refers to diaries in which eighteenth century daily life is documented with the brevity and precision of a tweet and cites a nineteenth century travel diary in which a young woman complains that her breakfast didn't agree with her Diaries Humphreys explains were often written to be shared with family and friends Pocket diaries were as mobile as smartphones allowing the diarist to record life in real time Humphreys calls this chronicling in both digital and nondigital forms media accounting The sense of self that emerges from media accounting is not the purely statistics driven quantified self but the more well rounded qualified self We come to understand ourselves in a new way through the representations of ourselves that we create to be consumed

Social Media for Government Staci Zavattaro, Thomas Bryer, 2016-03-10 Social media is playing a growing role within public administration and with it there is an increasing need to understand the connection between social media research and what actually takes place in government agencies Most of the existing books on the topic are scholarly in nature often leaving out the vital theory practice connection This book joins theory with practice within the public sector and explains how the effectiveness of social media can be maximized The chapters are written by leading practitioners and span topics like how to manage employee use of social media sites how emergency managers reach the public during a crisis situation applying public record management methods to social media efforts how to create a social media brand how social media can help meet government objectives such as transparency while juggling privacy laws and much more For each topic a collection of practitioner insights regarding the best practices and tools they have discovered are included Social Media for Government responds to calls within the overall public administration discipline to enhance the theory practice connection giving practitioners space to tell academics what is happening in the field in order to encourage further meaningful research into social media use within government

Information Literacy and Libraries in the Age of Fake News Denise E. Agosto, 2018-10-12 Going beyond the fake news problem this book tackles the broader issue of teaching library users of all types how to become more critical consumers and sharers of information As a public school or academic librarian or educator you can help library users to become more conscious and responsible consumers of information As you read you ll gain a better understanding and appreciation of the core concepts involved in promoting critical information literacy such as information ethics media literacy and civic education You ll also learn the history of fake news and come away with practical ideas in mind for strategies to apply in your library Chapters contributed by leading experts in public academic and school library services are written in plain everyday language that librarians and library school students can easily understand and relate to their own experiences as information users especially their experiences in social media and other online venues where sharing false information takes only a click Minnesota Law Review ,2016
