Feminist Collections, 2015 The Affirmative Discomforts of Black Female Authorship Nahum N. Welang, 2022-10-17

Ubiquitous triple consciousness frameworks address the limitations of W. E. B. Du Bois's seminal double consciousness concept by emphasizing a third gendered lens, a definite consciousness that legitimizes the rich complexities of the Black American female experience. In The Affirmative Discomforts of Black Female Authorship: Rethinking Triple Consciousness in Contemporary American Culture, the author rethinks this methodology by examining an interesting assemblage of contemporary Black female authors: Roxane Gay, Beyoncé, and Issa Rae across four disciplines: history, literature, music, and television. Whose contemporary multimedia works are engaging with a third lens, the author conceptualizes as rupture. This rupture, a simultaneous embrace and rejection of racial and gendered experiences that are affirmative but also contradictory, unsettling, and ultimately unresolved, problematizes hegemonic notions of identity and boldly moves towards a potential shift, a shift on the cusp of profound rethinking and reimagination.

Not That Bad Roxane Gay, 2018-05-01. New York Times Bestseller. Edited and with an introduction by Roxane Gay, the New York Times bestselling and deeply beloved author of Bad Feminist and Hunger, this anthology of first-person essays tackles rape, assault, and harassment head-on. Vogue 10 of the Most Anticipated Books of Spring 2018, Harper's Bazaar 10 New Books to Add to Your Reading List in 2018, Elle 21 Books We're Most Excited to Read in 2018, Boston Globe 25 books we can't wait to read in 2018, Huffington Post 60 Books We Can't Wait to Read in 2018, Hello Giggles 19 Books We Can't Wait to Read in 2018, Buzzfeed 33 Most Exciting New Books of 2018. In this valuable and revealing anthology, cultural critic and bestselling author Roxane Gay collects original and previously published pieces that address what it means to live in a world where women have to measure the harassment, violence, and aggression they face and where they are routinely second-guessed, blown off, discredited, denigrated, besmirched, belittled, patronized, mocked, shamed, gaslit, insulted, bullied, for speaking out. Contributions include essays from established and up-and-coming writers, performers, and critics, including actors Ally Sheedy and Gabrielle Union and writers Amy Jo Burns, Lyz Lenz, Claire Schwartz, and Bob Shacochis. Covering a wide range of topics and experiences, from an exploration of the rape epidemic embedded in the refugee crisis to first-person accounts of child molestation, this collection is often deeply personal and is always unflinchingly honest. Like Rebecca Solnit's Men Explain Things to Me, Not That Bad will resonate with every reader, saying something in totality that we cannot say alone. Searing and heartbreakingly candid, this provocative collection both reflects the world we live in and offers a call to arms, insisting that not that bad must no longer be good enough.

The Cambridge History of the American Essay Christy Wampole, Jason Childs, 2023-12-14. From the country's beginning, essayists in the United States have used their prose to articulate the many ways their individuality has been shaped by the politics, social life, and culture of this place. The Cambridge History of the American Essay offers the fullest account to date of this diverse and complex history. From Puritan writings to essays by Indigenous authors, from Transcendentalist and Pragmatist texts to Harlem Renaissance essays, from New Criticism to New Journalism, the story of the American essay is told here, beginning in the early eighteenth century and ending with the vibrant, heterogeneous scene of contemporary essayistic writing. The essay in the US has taken many forms: nature writing, travel writing, the genteel tradition, literary criticism, hybrid genres such as the essay film and the photo essay. Across genres and identities, this volume offers a stirring account of American essayism into the twenty-first century.

Am I a Bad Feminist? Moments of Reflection and Negotiation in Contemporary Feminist Identity Elizabeth Ryan Brownlow,2020 In 2014 Roxane Gay published Bad Feminist a collection of personal essays written from her position as a Haitian American feminist academic This work quickly skyrocketed in popularity across both academic and nonacademic audiences Representative of the increasingly public facing autoethnographic scholarship of feminist academic women Gay s work is a product of its time For this dissertation I examine Bad Feminist along with two other also wildly popular autoethnographic works produced in the same decade Tressie McMillan Cotton s Thick And Other Essays and Maggie Nelson s The Argonauts I examine these texts as public facing accessible works that communicate their academic feminist authors feelings of feminist inadequacy in order to address larger issues of feminist practice and theory Utilizing Sara Ahmed s theory of becoming feminist I analyze the bad feminist moments expressed in these texts as moments of feminist crisis to identify what causes them and what functions they might serve Using qualitative methodological triangulation better known as mixed methods research I employ topic modeling and content analysis across all three texts to identify patterns that reveal not only why and how academic feminists might feel like they are bad feminists but how and why they choose to share the moments in which they feel like bad feminists with others Fighting to maintain their feminist identities in a world rife with gendered and raced violence neoliberal ideals of self sufficiency and individual perfection rapidly evolving technologies and intersecting historical structures of oppression these authors utilize moments of feminist imperfection to create space and time to disarticulate and rearticulate their relationships to feminism their relationships to other people and their relationships to academia In this project I conclude that bad feminist moments might be reactions to the pressures of both historical and contemporary structures of oppression but the choice to reflect on them and share with others is based in feminist principles of reflexivity and collective inspiration to resist perpetuating ongoing structures of oppression inside and outside of the academy
