Children David Satterthwaite, et al, 2014-04-23 Each year millions of children die of environmental causes and many more suffer serious illness or injury Children are often the most vulnerable to the condition of their environment and their health is an index of its quality but their wellbeing is rarely given priority by governments or aid agencies Ironically the problems can be traced back to matters which can be treated straightforwardly and at relatively low cost poor drinking water or food or infectious diseases which can be controlled This book gives a multidisciplinary account of the environmental health hazards threatening children and the range of impacts they can have It also explains what can be done by communities as well as governments and aid workers to provide safe and healthy environments for children The book looks at conditions in a range of cities in the developing world as well as pollutants and other health problems affecting children in the North Published in association with UNICEF and written by some of the same authors as Environmental Problems in Third World Cities Earthscan 1993 this provides excellent course material and will be useful for practitioners working on child development infant and maternal health environmental health and community development David Satterthwaite is Director of the Human Settlements Programme at the International Institute for Environment and Development and principal author of Environmental Problems in Third World Cities 1993 and Squatter Citizen 1989 Environmental Engineering James R.
