Gcse New Macs:

How Good an Historian Shall I Be? Marnie Hughes-Warrington, 2012-02-28 R G Collingwood's name is familiar to historians and history educators around the world. Few however have charted the depths of his reflections on what it means to be educated in history. In this book Marnie Hughes-Warrington begins with the facet of Collingwood's work best known to teachers: re-enactment and locates it in historically informed discussions on empathy, imagination and history education. Revealed are dynamic concepts of the a priori imagination and education that tend towards reflection on the presuppositions that shape our own and others forms of life.

Empathy and History Tyson Retz, 2018-07-27 Empathy and History offers a comprehensive and dual account of empathy's intellectual and educational history. Beginning in an influential educational movement that implanted the concept in R G Collingwood's re-enactment doctrine, the book goes back to reveal the fundamental role that empathy played in the foundation of the history discipline, before tracing its reception and development in twentieth century hermeneutics and philosophy of history. Attentive to matters of practice, it illuminates the distinct character of the historical context that empathetic understanding seeks to capture and sets out a new approach to empathy as a special variety of historical questioning.

Which Way Social Justice in Mathematics Education? Leone Burton, 2003-02-28 This contributed volume explores equity and social justice within the field of mathematics education. In part one Helga Jungwirth's introductory chapter provides a strong theoretical overview that is based in actual classroom behaviors and a typology that classifies the various interpretations found within this volume. Also in part one Laurie Hart discusses developments in equity research in the United States. Part two focuses on results of studies about social justice and their impact on learning in mathematics classrooms in various parts of the world. For example, in a chapter on Peru, social justice does not just encompass gender but also inequalities in opportunities to learn, such as problems of resources, living and social conditions, communal demands and language needs. And part three focuses on computers as a resource to mathematics teaching. The contributors raise several important social justice issues which have previously remained unresearched. Although there are a number of chapters specifically dealing with gender, many of the authors use one of the following strategies: their gender-specific questions are set in a wider socio-cultural context; they challenge what have threatened to become false orthodoxies; or they raise other important issues. These other issues include the meaning of democratic citizenship for mathematics classrooms; the links between parents and children learning mathematics; and the preconceptions of some teachers of underprivileged students in Australia. Other chapters explore different forms of classroom communication, participation and assessment. The pieces on computers state that there is still not enough research to conclude whether computers in the mathematics classrooms are supportive of or detrimental to the learning of all students. The one thing on which every author in this volume does agree is that social justice in mathematics education has still not been attained but that we must strive toward it to improve educational practices and society in general     The Changing Face of Educational Assessment Roger Murphy, Harry Torrance, 1988     Francophonie ,1997     The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2009     JACT Review ,1999     NewMedia ,1999     Fortnight ,1987     The Multimedia and CD-ROM Directory ,1998     Teaching Film at GCSE James Baker, Patrick Toland, 2007-11-07 This book is for teachers of Media Studies and English who are responsible for delivering this exciting and demanding area of the curriculum Suitable for both new and experienced teachers it provides a range of approaches from the focused teaching of film in Media Studies to the use of film as support material in English courses Clear explanations of the key concepts and ideas for film study are accompanied by a series of case studies providing practical advice and exercises for every classroom environment It includes different approaches to using film in the classroom an introduction to key concepts for studying film an overview of influential critical and academic perspectives a survey of historical and industrial contexts for production and consumption of film and case studies of films within particular genres Action films Comic book adaptations and Teen movies The guide is supported by extensive online resources to help the busy teacher get the most out of their students     The Times Index ,1998 Indexes the Times Sunday times and magazine Times literary supplement Times educational supplement Times educational supplement Scotland and the Times higher education supplement     British Education Index ,1997     The Historian ,1987     Journal of Biological Education ,1991     Understanding Science Lessons Michael Jonathan Reiss, 2000 This text reports the findings of a study into pupils learning of science The results are interpreted with respect to such factors as the behaviours of girls and boys in lessons importance of the teacher purpose of investigations in science education and the effects of the National Curriculum     CD-ROM Market Place, 1993/94 Regina Rega, 1993 Published annually to give librarians and industry professionals a guide to the organizations individuals and products in the CD ROM industry It has information on over 3500 organizations worldwide and a geographic subject names and numbers index     New Scientist ,1996
