PROSE FICTION: The Lessons of Wilderness Living

Members of modern society are fortunate to enjoy many conveniences once unheard of or reserved for the elite. Imagine, if you can, only one day without running water. It strains the mind to think of all the daily rituals
5 one would have to change if the tap suddenly went dry. People today take electricity for granted, too. Lately, I've realized that while reliance on modern technology can improve the efficiency and quality of life, it also keeps people from learning meaningful lessons
10 about living with the earth. The conservation ethics that I gained this summer while working at a hunting lodge I could not have learned elsewhere.

The lodge is located on a massive, little known lake in northern Canada, closer to the Arctic Circle than 15 it is to the U.S. border. Every spring, the lodge reopens to welcome scores of dedicated anglers itching to dip a line in the nearby pristine creeks. By summer, the small lodge fills to capacity with eager hunters. On the guided treks, these men and women primarily chase
20 migratory birds and caribou, but I have seen plenty of other unique game come back to the lodge kitchen for preparation. Every hunter agrees that what one finds at the lodge is a truly novel hunting experience. Many people are surprised to find the lodge is totally 25 self-sufficient, with the exception of the food staples it receives by small airplane. For a whole season, I was "off the grid," totally dependent on the lodge to provide me with heat, light, water, and sanitation.

When I asked the owner why he built his 30 modern-looking log lodge so far beyond the reach of civilization, he replied, "I didn't really like hunting anywhere the sewer line ran." Or electricity or telephone or the water main. I thought to myself. The boss is a peculiar man, but I see why he had no reservations
35 about setting up shop so deep in the wilderness. He had learned to love it years ago when he was an elite mountain soldier in the army. He always mentioned that life wasn't as difficult in the subarctic wilderness as 40 people think. Of course, he had a lodge to run, and not everyone was as hardy as he. His creative solutions to the lack of infrastructure are impressive.

The first necessity of employees and guests is
