Active and Programmable Networks David Hutchison, Spyros Denazis, Laurent Lefevre, Gary J. Minden, 2009-04-07 This volume contains the proceedings of the 7th International Working Conference on Active and Programmable Networks IWAN 2005 that was held during November 21-23 2005 in Sophia Antipolis Cote d'Azur France jointly organized by Hitachi Europe and INRIA IWAN 2005 took place against a backdrop of questions about the viability and necessity of a conference that deals with an area perceived by many as having run its full course The Organizing Committee during the preparations of the conference took these concerns seriously and reflected them in the theme of this year's event entitled Reincarnating Active Networking Research and expanding the scope of past calls for papers into topics that have emerged from active and programmable networks The result was a success because we received 72 submissions a number that exceeded our expectations and in fact is one of the highest in the history of the conference The distinguished Technical Program Committee set high standards for the final program each one of the submitted papers received three peer reviews with detailed comments and suggestions for the authors In total 13 papers were accepted for the main program sessions with 9 papers accepted unconditionally and the remaining 4 papers being conditionally accepted with shepherding by selected Program Committee members

How the Internet Changed America Alexei Anisin, 2025-10-02 This book investigates societal shifts induced by internet technologies Alexei Anisin applies Anthony Giddens structuration theory to analyze interactions between digital structures and human agency He argues against deterministic narratives about technological change emphasizing the contingent and dynamic nature of digital platforms and their relation to societal behaviors Digital technologies generate new structures that shape societal behaviors which are reshaped by human agency through reciprocity and structuration This book observes declining civic participation demonstrating that online interactions can expand virtual communities while contributing to physical social isolation and decreased interpersonal and societal trust Online interactions are also shown to have increased political polarization through deepening ideological division and reducing trust in key governmental institutions Additionally high screen time and social media use have led to record declines in traditional reading habits especially among younger generations who prioritize fast and digestible sensationalist content Anisin theorizes the rise of social media influencers who have impacted cultural norms through a dynamic interplay between influencer-led content production digital structures algorithms and reoccurring interactions with followers while also addressing how the integration of private tech resources with state-led surveillance is eroding individual privacy and altering political outcomes

Privacy in the Age of Big Data Theresa Payton, Ted Claypoole, 2023-03-15 A thorough update to a classic in the field of privacy and big data We have a global privacy problem

The average person provides more information about themselves to more outsiders than any time in history. Corporations, governments, and even our neighbors can know where we are at times, can quickly learn our preferences and priorities, and see who we meet. The past decade has brought deep changes in the collection of our private information, the regulation of that collection, and in people's sensitivity to loss of privacy. The nascent privacy-threatening technology trends of a decade ago have blossomed into relentless data capturing systems that police and companies have come to rely on. To address the expansion of personal data capture, entire data regulatory regimes have arisen throughout the world, with new regulations added each year. People are more concerned, regulators are more aggressive, yet data collection continues to increase with consequences around the world. Social media use has fragmented in the past five years, spreading personal information over dozens of platforms. Even most of our new televisions have started collecting second by second information about our households recently, and some of those televisions can recognize the individuals watching and the devices they carry. Amazon just activated a new worldwide network using bandwidth from personal WiFi of Echo devices and Ring security systems. The beat of new intrusions never seems to end. These data trends are relentless, and yet response to the pandemic accelerated them. Rapid development of contactless everything became the norm. Contact tracing apps became acceptable, QR codes for everything from menus to contact information were created quickly. Businesses are faced with hybrid in-office and remote workforces. More people are dependent on online and mobile technologies for food, medicine, and even human connection. And each of these contacts can be captured somewhere and logged in a file for marketing or surveillance. People want to keep their lives private, but they don't know how. The second edition of Privacy in the Age of Big Data addresses the significant advances in data-driven technology, their intrusion deeper in our lives, the limits on data collection newly required by governments in North America and Europe, and the new security challenges of a world rife with ransomware and hacking. This thoroughly updated edition demonstrates personal privacy vulnerabilities and shows ways to live a safer, more private life. Other privacy books tend to focus deeply on the evils of large tech companies or more academic and technical concerns. But Privacy in the Age of Big Data, second edition, helps regular people understand the privacy threats and vulnerabilities in their daily lives and will provide solutions for maintaining better privacy while enjoying a modern life. Unlike other books, this one shows what you can do to make a difference, to understand your current digital footprint, and what you need to do to claw back your privacy and secure it in the future. While PRIVACY IN THE AGE OF BIG DATA will have cross-sectional appeal to many demographics, working adults 25-60 and CEOs and Boards of businesses are the primary demographic, young enough to know we need to do something to protect privacy and old enough to remember what happens when we haven't in the past. With down-to-earth prose and examples pulled from daily life, the writing style will attract buyers of all education levels.
