Sleep Disorders in Selected Psychiatric Settings Imran S. Khawaja, Thomas D. Hurwitz, 2021-01-19 According to research more than 50% of patients seen in psychiatric clinics have sleep problems Despite this fact there is a lack of sleep medicine training in psychiatric residency programs especially for disorders like insomnia and sleep related problems in women and children Also there is a lack of education on treating sleep problems in special situations like ICU settings or managing sleep problems via telemedicine Sleep physicians on the other hand are uncomfortable treating patients with the psychiatric disorders particularly in this demographic Pediatricians are also not trained to work with children suffering from sleep disturbances or psychiatric disorders They often struggle to correctly identify a particular disorder and lack confidence to adequately treat and manage these issues In total there are only about 250 clinicians trained in both sleep medicine and psychiatry despite the millions of patients who could benefit from both disciplines While Springer does have a forthcoming text on sleep and psychiatric disturbances that addresses comorbid sleep disorders in the general population there is still no resource that examines the intricacies of insomnia in women and children This text highlights the importance of common medical comorbidities and illuminates the salient points for treatment diagnosis and management of these conditions as they relate particularly to these special populations Written by experts in both sleep medicine and psychiatry the text takes a cutting edge reader friendly approach to topics that include sleep disturbances in pregnancy sleep tele medicine sleep disturbances related to difficulties in schools and substance induced disturbances Each chapter follows a consistent format making it an excellent tool for the busy clinician who is not able to sift through scientific literature or didactic texts Psychiatric Sleep Disorders in Women and Children is an excellent resource for all clinicians who may work with special populations struggling with sleep and psychiatric comorbidities including psychiatrists sleep medicine physicians internists primary care and family medicine physicians pediatricians obstetrics gynecologists psychologists and others

Health Promotion in the Universities and Other Educational Settings Miguel Corbí, Antoni Aguilo, Carmen Gallardo Pino, Mario Del Líbano, Carlos Emanuel Rodriguez-Diaz, Hiram V. Arroyo Acevedo, 2025-09-17 The promotion of health in universities is of great importance as it allows for the encouragement of healthy lifestyles and the prevention of diseases among students teaching staff and administrative personnel The university is a conducive environment for the promotion of healthy habits since firstly it is usually the moment when the students make decisions under their responsibility and secondly it is a place where academic sports and social activities take place so it is also an ideal moment to promote changes that can be transferred to society and the rest of the individual's life Health promotion in universities can cover several areas such as healthy eating physical exercise prevention of addictions emotional and social mental health among others It can also involve the entire university community from students to administrative and teaching staff In the case of students it is essential as it is a period of change and habit formation and the fact that they will be the future decision makers of society

Psychiatric Consultation in Childbirth Settings Richard Lawrence Cohen, 1988-05-31 The primary purposes of this volume are 1 To provide mental health practitioners with a current overview of our knowledge about normal parental development during pregnancy and its relation to fetal development with particular emphasis on the impact of acute and chronic stress on these developmental processes 2 To provide an understanding of the general state of the field of pregnancy and childbirth care both in conventional health systems and in alternative options 3 To provide an understanding of models of consultation and liaison that are adapted to the special conditions of pregnancy and childbirth care as contrasted to the more traditional modes that characterize these activities in medical and surgical hospitals If there prove to be secondary gains as a result of pursuing these goals so much the better The most desirable of these would be a heightening of awareness of the mental health needs of pregnant families and of the risks they incur in transition from non parenthood to parenthood and a more effective level of primary and secondary prevention of childhood mental disorders These latter goals are more global and perhaps even a bit grandiose Their attainment could only be documented through a series of carefully designed research projects aimed at measuring long range developmental outcome in children and families who have experienced appropriate and early intervention during the pregnancy period
