Authenticity In Materials Development For Language Learning:

Authenticity in Materials Development for Language Learning Alan Maley, Brian Tomlinson, 2017-11-06 This volume makes a unique contribution to the literature on materials development for language learning. It focuses on issues related to authenticity in materials development and includes research-based position statements, applications of theory to practice, and developments of theory from observed practice. Each paper concentrates on a different aspect of authenticity, and many of them introduce the reader to previously unexplored facets of authenticity. The chapters are sequenced so that the book moves from general discussion about the value of authenticity to reports of evaluations of authenticity to reports of the exploitation of authenticity in specific learning contexts. Many questions are raised, much revealing data is reported and analysed, and many pedagogic suggestions are made. The contributions here have been written so that they are of potential value to teachers, materials developers, postgraduate students, and researchers. They are written to be academically rigorous but at the same time to be accessible to newcomers to the field and to experienced experts alike. The Routledge Handbook of Materials Development for Language Teaching Julie Norton, Heather Buchanan, 2022-03-16 The Routledge Handbook of Materials Development for Language Teaching is the definitive resource for all working in this area of language and English language teaching. Issues in Materials Development Maryam Azarnoosh, Mitra Zeraatpishe, Akram Faravani, Hamid Reza Kargozari, 2016-03-22 Issues in Materials Development provides readers with theoretical foundations and practical aspects of designing materials for EFL/ESL contexts. It starts with discussing some basic and preliminary principles of materials design, followed by scrutinizing critical issues in materials development in an objective and systematic way. This ranges from considering learners' needs, adopting/adapting selection and gradation of materials to the specific focus of the book on developing various types of materials for the four language skills: pronunciation, ESP vocabulary, and computer-assisted language learning materials. Authenticity of materials to be designed and the inclusion of affective factors to develop motivating materials to engage language learners, in addition to features of materials design at a universal level, are other areas to read about. This book finally tries to open new horizons and possible futuristic approaches to improve today's ELT materials

Research for Materials Development in Language Learning Brian Tomlinson, Hitomi Masuhara, 2010-11-18 This title examines current research in materials development and discusses their implications for the learning and teaching of languages. Recently, there has been a dramatic increase in the attention given to materials development as an academic discipline. More universities are including modules on materials development on their MA in applied linguistics courses, and more students are studying materials development in their PhD research. Yet to date, there has been no publication focusing on reporting and discussing the results of research in materials development. This fills that gap, reporting on the results of recent research projects in materials development and discussing their implications for the learning and teaching of languages. The editors' introduction outlines the rationale, scope, and objectives of the book, and reviews previously published reports of research in materials development. There are concluding chapters which point out implications for second language acquisition theory and research methodology. The book features suggested applications of the reported research for materials development and proposals for future action in research in materials development for language teaching.

Designing Authenticity Into Language Learning Materials Freda Mishan, 2005 This book puts forward an authenticity-centred approach to the design of materials for language learning. The premise of the approach is that language learning should be based on authentic materials drawn from a variety of genres found in the target language culture, and that the learning tasks involving these materials should be correspondingly authentic by entailing interactions that are consistent with the original communicative purpose of the authentic text. It provides both a theoretical grounding to the authenticity-centred approach and demonstrates its practical application in a teaching task reference section. In outline, the book refines a definition of authenticity in the context of language pedagogy, traces the historical background to authenticity in language learning back over one millennium, grounds the use of authentic materials in language learning in L2 acquisition research, gives a critical analysis of the authenticity of contemporary language study course books, discusses the use of seven authentic genres for language learning: broadcasting, newspapers, advertisements, music, and song, film, literature, and ICT information and communications technology. Offers a set of practical principles for the
