You're a talented, interesting student and when you really know who you are, you're going to make the best decisions for yourself and for your college applications. Maybe you're just starting the college admissions journey and maybe you're overwhelmed by the paperwork, school descriptions, test score requirements, extracurricular activity options, and the daunting task of figuring it all out without losing yourself. Or maybe you've already started the college admissions process and you feel okay about your applications but you're struggling with the personal statement or essays. Or perhaps you want permission not to be a carbon copy of the ideal student and want out-of-the-box ways to be yourself both in life and in the admissions process, and you're not just managing your expectations but you're also managing your parents and their expectations. College admissions can be especially intimidating if your high school sucks, you're first in your family to go to college, or you haven't always been a model student. You might also be a concerned parent or mentor looking for a guide designed specifically not to stress you and your kid out and one that might even help dealing with admissions anxiety as you learn the ropes of college admissions. For all the times you've worried about how heinous colleges' admissions is, shaken your head about how it's all about high performance achievement and crazy amounts of extracurriculars, and you've thought, "There has to be a better way," you were right. You just found it. Best of R/ Dan Chambers, 2019-08-18
