Mauro F. Guillén, 2020-08-25 AN INTERNATIONAL BESTSELLER Wall Street Journal Bestseller A Porchlight Book Bestseller Financial Times Best Books of 2020 Yahoo Finance Favorite Business Books of 2020 JP Morgan NextList 2021 selection Bold provocative illuminates why we re having fewer babies the middle class is stagnating unemployment is shifting and new powers are rising ADAM GRANT The world is changing drastically before our eyes will you be prepared for what comes next

A groundbreaking analysis from one of the world's foremost experts on global trends including analysis on how COVID 19 will amplify and accelerate each of these changes. Once upon a time the world was neatly divided into prosperous and backward economies. Babies were plentiful, workers outnumbered retirees, and people aspiring towards the middle class yearned to own homes and cars. Companies didn't need to see any further than Europe and the United States to do well. Printed money was legal tender for all debts, public and private. We grew up learning how to play the game, and we expected the rules to remain the same as we took our first job, started a family, saw our children grow up, and went into retirement with our finances secure. That world and those rules are over. By 2030 a new reality will take hold, and before you know it, there will be more grandparents than grandchildren. The middle class in Asia and Sub-Saharan Africa will outnumber the US and Europe combined. The global economy will be driven by the non-Western consumer for the first time in modern history. There will be more global wealth owned by women than men. There will be more robots than workers. There will be more computers than human brains. There will be more currencies than countries. All these trends currently underway will converge in the year 2030 and change everything you know about culture, the economy, and the world. According to Mauro F. Guillen, the only way to truly understand the global transformations underway and their impacts is to think laterally. That is, using peripheral vision or approaching problems creatively and from unorthodox points of view. Rather than focusing on a single trend, climate change, or the rise of illiberal regimes, for example, Guillen encourages us to consider the dynamic interplay between a range of forces that will converge on a single tipping point in 2030, that will be for better or worse, the point of no return. 2030 is both a remarkable guide to the coming changes and an exercise in the power of lateral thinking, thereby revolutionizing the way you think about cataclysmic change and its consequences. The People's Platform, Astra Taylor, 2014-04-15. An invaluable primer for anyone seeking to understand why our networked world isn't all that it is cracked up to be. The Guardian. The Internet has been hailed as an unprecedented democratizing force, a place where everyone can be heard and all can participate equally. But how true is this claim? In a seminal dismantling of techno-utopian visions, The People's Platform argues that for all that we tweet and like and share, the Internet in fact reflects and amplifies real-world inequities at least as much as it ameliorates them. Online, just as off-line, attention and influence largely accrue to those who already have plenty of both. What we have seen so far, Astra Taylor says, has been not a revolution but a rearrangement. Although Silicon Valley tycoons have eclipsed Hollywood moguls, a handful of giants like Amazon, Apple, Google, and Facebook remain the gatekeepers. And the worst habits of the old media model, the pressure to seek easy celebrity, to be quick and sensational above all, have proliferated on the web, where aggregating the work of others is the surest way to attract eyeballs and ad revenue. When culture is free, creative work has diminishing value, and advertising fuels the system, the new order looks suspiciously like the old one. We can do better, Taylor insists. The online world does offer a unique opportunity, but a democratic culture that supports diverse voices and work of lasting value will not spring up from technology alone. If we want the Internet to truly be a people s platform we will have to make it so Beautifully written and highly recommended David Byrne musician and author
