Clarke,2003-09-02 Independent practical guidance on the structural design of polymer composites is provided for the first time in this book Structural designers familiar with design of conventional structural materials such as steel and concrete will be able to use it to design a broad range of polymeric composites for structural applications using glass fibre reinforced plastic materials components connections and assemblies Optimisation of Composite Structures Design A

Miravete,1996-01-01 Composite materials have been used more and more during the last decade to lighten structures But until now there has been no clear way of establishing how to design properly optimised laminated composite plates with no reduction in strength Most modern references lack adequate information for the designer wanting to tailor or synthesise a design This exciting package offers a solution It relates the theory of composite materials to real life and provides rules for designing composites structures properly and in an optimum way In the book Professor Miravete demonstrates the optimisation of beams plates and sandwich constructions in the designs of advanced composite materials He also illustrates optimal material systems fibre orientations and lay up through functions of geometry load type and boundary conditions The associated software on two disks will enable users to adapt the information to their own requirements and is very user friendly with helpful manuals This will be an essential package for designers and engineers in a wide range of areas from aeronautics to automotive and marine as well as general industry Chapter 1 provides a general background on composite materials Chapters 2 3 4 and 5 are concerned with constant thickness composite structures and provide a survey of various design methodologies of shells plates and sandwich constructions Chapters 6 7 8 and 9 examine variable thickness composite structures and consider beams plates and sandwiches A complete manual for anyone concerned with designing composite structures Includes book and user friendly software Can be easily applied to any area aeronautics automotive marine or general industry Processability of Polymeric Composites Anup K. Composite Structures I. H. Marshall, Institution of Mechanical Engineers (Great Britain), National Engineering Laboratory (Great Britain), 1981-08 The papers contained herein were presented at the First International Conference on Composite Structures held at Paisley College of Technology Paisley Scotland in September 1981 This conference was organised and sponsored by Paisley College of Technology in association with The Institution of Mechanical Engineers and The National Engineering Laboratory UK There can be little doubt that within engineering circles the use of composite materials has revolutionised traditional design concepts The ability to tailor make a material to suit prevailing environmental conditions whilst maintaining adequate reinforcement to withstand applied loading is unquestionably an attractive proposition Significant weight savings can also be achieved by virtue of the high strength to weight and stiffness to weight characteristics of for example fibrous forms of composite materials Such savings are clearly of paramount importance in transportation engineering and in particular aircraft and aerospace applications Along with this considerable structural potential the engineer must accept an increased complexity of analysis All too often in the past this has dissuaded the designer from considering composite materials as a viable or indeed better alternative to traditional engineering materials Inherent prejudices within the engineering profession have also contributed in no small way to a certain wariness in appreciating the merits of composites However the potential benefits of composite materials are inescapable The last two decades have seen a phenomenal increase in the use of composites in virtually every area of engineering from the high technology v vi Preface aerospace application to the less demanding structural cladding situation
