Interfaces Between Language And Cognition Yury Y. Shtyrov, Andriy Myachykov, Christoph Scheepers, 2013-06-28 Cognitive mechanisms underlying linguistic communication do not only rely upon retrieval and processing of linguistic information they also involve constant updating and organizing of this linguistic information in relation with other more general cognitive mechanisms Some existing theoretical models assume such a tight interactive link between domain general and domain specific sources of information in the cognitive organization of the linguistic faculty and during language use Domain specific constraints may include for example grammatical as well as lexical and pragmatic knowledge Domain general constraints comprise processing limitations imposed by the cognitive mechanisms of memory attention learning and social interaction However much of the existing research tends to focus on one or the other of the aforementioned areas while integrative accounts are still rather sparse at present Therefore the aim of this Research Topic of Frontiers in Cognition is to bring together researchers who with in their respective research fields and by using different methodologies represent integrative approaches to the study of language We invite submissions from a wide range of interrelated areas of research cognitive architectures of language aspects of language processing linguistic development bilingualism language embodiment neuropsychology of linguistic function among others We would like to solicit original research contributions discussing behavioral neurophysiological and computational evidence as well as papers on methodological and or theoretical aspects of the interplay between linguistic and non linguistic cognitive processes

The Role of Alternative Conflict Management in Community Forestry Christine Pendzich, Garry Thomas, Tim Wohlgenant, 1994 Gender and Nation in South Eastern Europe Karl Kaser, Elisabeth Katschnig-Fasch, 2005 It is the stated intention of this volume on Gender and Nation in South Eastern Europe to challenge the image of an antagonistic inside and outside The authors do not only argue from various geographical points of view from within and without the region including Bulgaria the Kosovo Serbia Romania Croatia as well as Austria Germany and the United States they also argue from different scientific points of view and scholarly traditions be it in the vein of Donna Haraway's standpoint of epistemology a multi sited ethnography or in reference to dialogical models They raise their voices on sexist patriarchy and thus on the relationship of gender and nation on which the specific phenomenon of regional nationalisms is based The editors subscribe to an open definition of gender as a social and cultural localisation of perceptions of sex The perception of biological sex is thus not ignored here on the contrary Its social and political role is particularly apparent when neo liberal discourses of masculinity and femininity make reference to a natural sex The question of socio cultural gender differences the ideals on which the categories man and woman are based and their forced or enabled embedding through a regional historical or political environment are thus central The fact that the understanding of masculinity and femininity varies according to the respective local reproductive regimes is self evident In Part One this volume is introduced in two contributions on the theoretical complex of gender and nation They provide a glance at this web of meanings over time and space and explain why this relationship is so vital why it inevitably leads to the inclusion of the male self and the exclusion of the female other Ideological constructions and structural relationships develop and change based on a background of concrete historical events and in the course of specific social transformation processes The essays in Part Two then delve into a discussion of regional and historical forms and effects They demonstrate how the relationship has effected the consolidation and national self definition processes of the countries of South Eastern Europe and to what specific forms of inequality between social and cultural groups this is leading or has led Historically anchored the inevitable relationship of gender and nation leads not only to the subordination of women in all nation states at the same time it allows nations to develop and survive on the basis of the inequality of the sexes
