Price Expectations and the U.S. Housing Boom Pascal Towbin, Mr. Sebastian Weber, 2015-07-30 Between 1996 and 2006 the U S has experienced an unprecedented boom in house prices As it has proven to be difficult to explain the large price increase by observable fundamentals many observers have emphasized the role of speculation i e expectations about future price developments The argument is however often indirect speculation is treated as a deviation from a benchmark The present paper aims to identify house price expectation shocks directly To that purpose we estimate a VAR model for the U S and use sign restrictions to identify house price expectation housing supply housing demand and mortgage rate shocks House price expectation shocks are the most important driver of the boom and account for about 30 percent of the real house price increase We also construct a model based measure of exogenous changes in price expectations and show that this measure leads a survey based measure of changes in house price expectations Our main identification scheme leaves open whether expectation shifts are realistic or unrealistic In extensions we provide evidence that price expectation shifts during the boom were primarily unrealistic and were only marginally affected by realistic expectations about future fundamentals

Pricing Fixed Rate Mortgages Fernando Diz, 1989 Contemporary Issues in Social Science Simon Grima, Ercan Özen, Hakan Boz, 2021-05-25 This international exploration on different economic systems provides a comprehensive account which brings a wide range of countries to the forefront in terms of both comparability and accountability this study shines a light on the differences in systems between states and provides information to equip readers to minimize those differences

Interstate Banking and Branching United States. Congress. House. Committee on Banking, Finance, and Urban Affairs. Subcommittee on Financial Institutions Supervision, Regulation, and Deposit Insurance, 1993 Regional Science in Business Graham Clarke, Moss Madden, 2013-03-09 Graham Clarke and Moss Madden 1 1 Background In the mid 1990s there were a number of papers in regional science that questioned the relevance and purpose of the entire sub discipline Bailly and Coffey 1994 for example talked of regional science in crisis They argued that there were two fundamental problems First regional science was too theoretical in the sense that many of its products were models that could neither be calibrated too complex or operationalised too abstract in the real world They suggested that regional science had not sufficiently demonstrated that it can address real world problems and subsequently lacked a focus on relevant policy issues Second they argued that regional science had become too narrow in focus and had moved away too far from real people and their daily concerns or struggles in life This was not the first time we had witnessed these sorts of arguments both from outside the discipline and from within Sayer 1976 was perhaps the first to argue for a shift from a model based focus in regional science to one based on political economy Breheny 1984 criticised the deep ignorance among regional scientists of the nature of practical policy making and implementation see also Rodwin 1987 for similar views in the mid 1980s Such self reflection is a feature of many disciplines as they reach maturity There have been many similar reflections in geography Johnston 1996
