Media Libraries in an Age of Unending Consumption Mike Van Esler, 2023-10-24. As the home video market upended traditional film industry models, media libraries emerged as important sources of ancillary revenue. The inflection point for media library exploitation came in 2007 when Netflix launched its streaming service, relying on extensive licensing of film and television libraries to grow its subscriber base. In this book, Mike Van Esler examines how media libraries and business models have evolved since the home video era, with particular emphasis placed on the streaming age of the past fifteen years. Van Esler argues that media libraries have grown beyond their usages from the pre-home video era to become central to today's corporate media strategy. By studying the ways in which media library exploitation has scaled up since the turn of the new millennium, the author identifies insights into larger media industry trends. Ultimately, this book explores the intersection of corporate media, independent distributors, private equity tech companies, and audiences. Scholars of media studies, business, and sociology will find this book of particular interest.

Europeans and the Media Andrea Miconi, 2024-08-13. This book investigates the relationship between the process of Europeanization, the expected rise of a common culture, and the role played by the media in the different regions. Drawing on a comparative model, the analysis is structured around frameworks related to the action of the media in shaping national identities to the world system theory, based on the hierarchization of geographical spaces and to the regional patterns identified in scientific literature. The analysis draws on data collected from numerous markets and across a variety of media formats to detect the geographical pattern that results from the diffusion of different technologies and cultural contents: the national, the regional, the European, and the global. This nuanced and insightful volume will interest students and scholars in the field of communication studies, European studies, and comparative media studies.
