Prediction, Projection and Forecasting Thomas L. Saaty, Luis G. Vargas, 1991 We predict when we say in advance foretell or prophesy what is likely to happen in the future We project when we calculate the numerical value associated with a future event We forecast a special kind of prediction on data of past happenings to generate or cast data for future by relying happenings Generally one predicts yes no a war an earthquake or the outcome of a chess match projects the value of the GNP or of unemployment and forecasts the weather and more scientifically the economic trends Prediction projection and forecasting must be constrained in time and space when and where Often the accuracy of a forecast is of interest along with how sensitive the outcome is to changes in the factors involved Is there a basis for improving the wisdom we need to make correct and useful predictions We believe there is and that it can be cultivated by studying the approach given here along with the various examples To the best of our knowledge no other work has approached prediction in the scientific framework of hierarchies Prediction is the synthesis of past and present in an attempt to foretell the future In our view creation is not the ultimate phenomenon of the world Nature creates forms and so do we The problem is to surmise the eventual purpose impact and use of creation It is the synthesis or outcome of bringing together the results of creation that we need to predict

Media Journal Joseph D. Harris,Jay Rosen,Gary Calpas,1999 In this book we ask students to do three things 1 To keep a media journal in which they reflect on the uses they make of the voices and images of popular culture 2 to read and respond to the work of other media critics to test their own views and experiences against those of the writers included in these pages and 3 to try their hands at writing media criticism themselves All three kinds of work ask students to find and write about texts from the media culture around them to think critically about what they see and hear on their television sets and radios in magazines and newspapers on city streets and shopping malls at the movies and at concerts and clubs To put it another way we believe that a book such as this can provide only some of the materials for a course on writing about popular culture that the remaining materials must always come from the media themselves and the experiences students have with them Our aim is not to inculcate students with a certain set of critical methods or terms or to introduce them to the academic study of popular culture but to offer them opportunities to rethink and write about their own experiences with the media to come to their own understandings of our common culture
