

AP® ENGLISH LITERATURE AND COMPOSITION
2016 SCORING GUIDELINES

Question 2: Thomas Hardy, "The Mayor of Casterbridge"

The items should reflect the quality of the essay as a whole — its content, style, and mechanics. Reveal the student's best work, not their best score. The student has no responsibility to cite evidence from any text, including Franklin's, unless the student explicitly notes it. Do not mark any 0 points unless using the revised English (see 4.1).

5-5 This essay offers a persuasive assessment of Hardy's portrayal of the complex relationship between the two characters, Michael Henchard and the woman, Elizabeth-Jane. The student makes a strong case for their complexity of the complex relationship between the two characters. They use specific evidence from the text, such as their words and actions, and they discuss the text through an apt specific interpretive lens. Though there may be some minor errors, this assessment displays a command of writing that is clear and effectively organized. Reveal a score of 5 unless more sophisticated analysis and more effective control of language than demonstrated is seen.

4-5 This essay offers a reasonable analysis of Hardy's portrayal of the complex relationship between the two characters. The student provides a reasonable, somewhat detailed reading of the passage, with evidence to demonstrate an understanding of Henchard and Elizabeth-Jane's words and actions, but the analysis may lack the depth and insight that a 5 essay would demonstrate. This 4 essay presents clear ideas with nearly well-organized evidence to illustrate the argument. Reveal a score of 4 unless more sophisticated analysis and more effective control of the complex relationship than is demonstrated is seen.

3 This essay responds to the assignment task with a student's reading of the passage, but tends to be restricted to that in its assessment of Hardy's portrayal of the complex relationship between the two characters. While containing some analysis of the passage, limited in scope, the discussion of Henchard and Elizabeth-Jane's words and actions tends to be restricted to the portrayal of the complex relationship only in detail, and support from the passage may tend toward surface or paraphrase. After these points, the student's language consists of phrases that simply may be taken by surface means. This essay may not be well organized, organized, or developed as a 3 essay.

2-2 This essay addresses the task but offers an abstract analysis of the passage. The student may be partial, paraphrasing or restating the passage, but does not appear to possess a full understanding of the complexity of the use of evidence to illustrate the relationship. These essays may be characterized by an absence of specific presentation of ideas, an absence of textual support, or an overreliance on simple, paraphrased or 2 essay-level, straightforward summarizing writing (e.g., "writing").

1-1 This essay conveys the understandings of the passage to the 1-1 page. This essay generally follows the passage in an unoriginal way. There may be some surface-level ideas that illustrate some understanding. Although some insight has been made in regard to the passage, the student's ideas are presented with little to no support or evidence from the passage. Reveal a score of 1 unless there is some discussion of the passage.

0 This essay gives a response that is completely off topic or unrecognizable. Some may be more than a 0 showing no original response to the task.

— This response is entirely blank.
