at Home and Out and About

If your child is learning phonics at school, you might want to support them at home but feel unsure of what to do.

The right help can boost your child's confidence in the right way so that they feel sure that all the words they see are pronounceable and that you definitely won't be able to help if you don't know the right word. It's important to be encouraging and praise the small steps that lead to a breakthrough.

If you can't see what your child is struggling with, it's best to ask them. You can also support your child with ideas on how to try things in a new way. For example, you can make a list of words that sound like the words they are struggling with.
