The author provides a model for the study of what he calls the language of translation. The opening chapters deal with six elements of translation: five stages in the process, three differing types, and the nature of the translation language together with methodological aspects of its study. The final chapters deal with some observations regarding the language of translation and the application of computer analysis. In addition to providing a descriptive frame, Dr Al Shabab captures the creative potential of the translation process and pinpoints the centrality of the translator as an agent, a builder of texts. This book is an important contribution to linguistic hermeneutics, attempting as it does to explain the success or failure of translation as a human enterprise.
