The Geography Of Thought

Richard E. Nisbett

The Geography Of Thought:

The Geography of Thought Richard E. Nisbett, 2003 When Richard Nisbett showed an animated underwater scene to his American students they zeroed in on a big fish swimming among smaller fish Japanese subjects on the other hand made observations about the background environment and the different settings are a clue to profound underlying cognitive differences between Westerners and East Asians As Professor Nisbett shows in The Geography of Thought people actually think and even see the world differently because of differing ecologies social structures philosophies and educational systems that date back to ancient Greece and China and that have survived into the modern world As a result East Asian thought is holistic drawn to the perceptual field as a whole and to relations among objects and events within that field By comparison to Western modes of reasoning East Asian thought relies far less on categories or on formal logic it is fundamentally dialectic seeking a middle way between opposing thoughts By contrast Westerners focus on salient objects or people use attributes to assign them to categories and apply rules of formal logic to understand their behavior

Pae, 2020-10-14 This open access volume reveals the hidden power of the script we read in and how it shapes and drives our minds ways of thinking and cultures Expanding on the Linguistic Relativity Hypothesis i.e. the idea that language affects the way we think this volume proposes the Script Relativity Hypothesis i.e. the idea that the script in which we read affects the way we think by offering a unique perspective on the effect of script alphabets morphosyllabaries or multi scripts on our attention perception and problem solving Once we become literate fundamental changes occur in our brain circuitry to accommodate the new demand for resources The powerful effects of literacy have been demonstrated by research on literate versus illiterate individuals as well as cross scriptal transfer indicating that literate brain networks function differently depending on the script being read This book identifies the locus of differences between the Chinese Japanese and Koreans and between the East and the West as the neural underpinnings of literacy To support the Script Relativity Hypothesis it reviews a vast corpus of empirical studies including anthropological accounts of human civilization social psychology cognitive psychology neuropsychology applied linguistics second language studies and cross cultural communication It also discusses the impact of reading from screens in the digital age as well as the impact of bi script or multi script use which is a growing trend around the globe As a result our minds ways of thinking and cultures are now growing closer together not farther apart widely differing views present fresh empirical evidence and new perspectives relating to how innovation plays out across space in an age where mobility has increased information is ubiquitous and globalisation has been realised Overall the dialogue between existing theory and new possibilities provides a unique and challenging appraisal of the connection between innovation agglomeration and space Offering cutting edge ideas in an accessible format this will be an ideal resource for students and scholars of economic geography and innovation studies The empirical evidence and analysis will also be of great value for policymakers and government officials Contributors include B T Asheim H W Aslesen A Bain P A Balland N Bradford A Bramwell C Brennan Horley S Breschi C Carraincazeaux C Chaminade R Comunian C De Fuentes D Doloreux D Eckert A Faggian M Ferru R D Fitjar K Flanagan C Gibson M Grillitsch M Grossetti G Harirchi F Huber A Isaksen S Jewel J Karlsen N Komninos J L Klein N Lee F Lissoni M Maisonobe J Mattes P McCann C T Noumedem R Ortega Argil s M Plechero A Rallet A Rodriguez Pose R Shearmur H L Smith B Spigel J Tallec E Tranos D G Tremblay F T dtling M Trippl E Uyarra C Yang C Wilkie D A Wolfe The Charles Lamb Bulletin ,2003 The Indiana School Journal ,1877

Ames,2009 Few if any philosophical schools have championed family values as persistently as the early Confucians and a great deal can be learned by attending to what they had to say on the subject In the Confucian tradition human morality and the personal realization it inspires are grounded in the cultivation of family feeling One may even go so far as to say that for China family reverence was a necessary condition for developing any of the other human qualities of excellence On the basis of the present translation of the Xiaojing Classic of Family Reverence and supplemental passages found in other early philosophical writings Professors Rosemont and Ames articulate a specifically Confucian conception of role ethics that in its emphasis on a relational conception of the person is markedly different from most early and contemporary dominant Western moral theories This Confucian role ethics takes as its inspiration the perceived necessity of family feeling as the entry point in the development of moral competence and as a guide to the religious life as well In the lengthy introduction two senior scholars offer their perspective on the historical philosophical and religious dimensions of the Xiaojing Together with this introduction a lexicon of key terms presents a context for the Xiaojing and provides guidelines for interpreting the text historically in China as well as suggesting its contemporary significance for all societies The inclusion of the Chinese text adds yet another dimension to this important study The Chinese Classic of Family Reverence is sure to appeal to specialists of comparative and Chinese philosophy and to all readers interested in the enduring importance of the family
