Regulating Families: Laws to Control People and Populations

China's population is the largest in the world, with over 1.4 billion people. The government has implemented a one-child policy to control the population and reduce the strain on resources. This policy has led to a significant demographic shift, with a large number of people being born as only children. This has led to a lack of family support and care for the elderly, as well as a gender imbalance due to a preference for boys. The policy has also led to a decline in the birth rate, which is expected to lead to a significant aging of the population in the future.
