Scientific Frontiers in Developmental Toxicology and Risk Assessment National Research Council,Commission on Life Sciences,Board on Environmental Studies and Toxicology,Committee on Developmental Toxicology,2000-11-21 Scientific Frontiers in Developmental Toxicology and Risk Assessment reviews advances made during the last 10 15 years in fields such as developmental biology molecular biology and genetics It describes a novel approach for how these advances might be used in combination with existing methodologies to further the understanding of mechanisms of developmental toxicity to improve the assessment of chemicals for their ability to cause developmental toxicity and to improve risk assessment for developmental defects For example based on the recent advances even the smallest simplest laboratory animals such as the fruit fly roundworm and zebrafish might be able to serve as developmental toxicological models for human biological systems Use of such organisms might allow for rapid and inexpensive testing of large numbers of chemicals for their potential to cause developmental toxicity presently there are little or no developmental toxicity data available for the majority of natural and manufactured chemicals in use This new approach to developmental toxicology and risk assessment will require simultaneous research on several fronts by experts from multiple scientific disciplines including developmental toxicologists developmental biologists geneticists epidemiologists and biostatisticians
