Regulator

Regulators control output pressure in a system. Pressure in a system of lines acting over a specific amount of distance. These devices are fitted with mechanical components that react to changes in the downstream air pressure. The regulator allows a constant pressure to be maintained across a pressure source as long as the input pressure remains greater than the output rated pressure. The working air in a regulator is vented to atmosphere. The regulator is used to control pressure in a system.

Pressure Adjustment Knob

Turning this knob clockwise increases the pressure. Turning it counter-clockwise decreases the pressure. Lower the pressure for compressed air used in tools.

Regulator Controls Pressure or Force

Regulators are used to regulate and control the performance of a pneumatic system. Every pneumatic system should have a pressure relief valve to prevent over pressure conditions. It is used to vent air from a pneumatic system. The regulator used in the 1/2" NPT 150 PSI and has a self-sealing feature.

Speed or Flow Valves

Flow valves control the speed of air flow through a system. They are used to control the amount of air flowing through the valve or component over a period of time. Flow is controlled by adjusting the opening of the valve. Increasing the opening allows more air to flow. The higher the flow rate, the faster the component will operate.

Flow is regulated in one direction only and flows slowly in the other direction. The flow opening in one direction is closed using a large spring contained in the valve. The regulated air flow direction is closed with a small spring. Flow control is best accomplished by regulating the flow of air out of a circuit or component.
