Research in its broadest sense may be thought of as the process of systematically collecting and analyzing data to gain a deeper understanding of a topic The research employs methodical approaches to address theoretical and applied concerns Studiously inquiring or examining investigating or experimenting to discover interpret facts revise the accepted theories or laws in light of the new facts or put such new or revised theories or laws into practical application is how the Oxford English Dictionary defines research Some individuals see research as a progression one that moves from the familiar to the unfamiliar Inquisitiveness is a fundamental human trait since it compels us to wonder and investigate to get a deeper and deeper grasp of the world around us Curiosity is the seed from which all knowledge grows and the process by which humans learn about the world is what we call study The word research must be used in a specialized context since it refers to a scholarly endeavour Therefore research is the original addition to the body of knowledge that contributes to its development Science is the methodical investigation of the world via the use of analogy comparison and experiment Research in a nutshell is the pursuit of answers to questions via the use of a methodical objective process Research also includes the methodical process of drawing broad conclusions and developing a hypothesis

Building on the core foundations of Anthropological Economics: Our second tranche of extensions on Anthropological Economics Sujay Rao Mandavilli,2026-01-10 The concepts of anthropological economics were introduced by us in the year 2020 in a paper entitled Introducing Anthropological Economics The quest for an Anthropological basis for Economic theory growth models and policy development for wealth and human welfare maximization and was published in the journal ELK Asia Pacific Journal of Social Sciences Volume 6 Issue 3 April June 2020 The paper was subsequently published in Google books later in the same year Subsequently several other papers were also published The objective of our work on anthropological economics has been to attempt to merge the concepts and theoretical frameworks of the disciplines of Anthropology and Economics thereby creating a new sub field in Economics called Anthropological Economics which is mired in Anthropological concepts and principles and sought to maximize not only human welfare and happiness but also wealth maximization across cultures while considering both the psychic unity of man universal human needs and culturespecific factors Thus the field of Anthropological Economics is expected to be inter related to other disciplines of Economics but remain complementary to them i e it is not expected that it would intrude into other sub fields of economics replace them or override their principles in any way It would therefore we anticipated draw upon other aspects of economic theory and enrich them suitably It is therefore expected that all aspects of Economic theory would be taken into consideration for policy formulation and decision making including those of Anthropological economics and independent context specific judgment would always be applied The new and novel proposed field of Anthropological Economics proposes to take the idea of Human Welfare to its logical conclusion by extending the work already carried out in various sub disciplines of economics such as those proposed by Amartya Sen and others and integrate it more tightly with various concepts in Anthropology Many new tools and techniques have therefore been proposed as a part of our overall work and we believe these would suitably enrich the field of Economics as well While many attempts have been made in the past to integrate the fields of Anthropology and Economics we hope anticipate expect and believe that 3 our endeavour would take this exercise to a much higher level by creating a new generation of Anthroeconomists We also hope that it will eventually help move mainstream economics away from Neo classical approaches what we prefer to call legacy economics at this point in time to Anthropological and human centric approaches The present volume presents our second tranche of additional and auxiliary concepts in anthropological economics The present volume must be read after the contents of the first two previous volumes have been fully read and ingested We say this in the interests of absolute reader clarity This is because the original paper and the previous extensions have not been reproduced here From contextualization to universalization: Accelerating the knowledge production lifecycle for theoretical sciences in the twenty-first century Sujay Rao Mandavilli,2025-11-23 A great deal of literature has indeed been published about the research lifecycle in modern and contemporary times particularly over the past couple of decades beginning from the 1980 s or so it also goes without saying that the quantum of such output has been greatly amplified since the dawn of the twenty first likewise a great deal has also been written about product development lifecycles and technology lifecycles and all these concepts have been approaches from multiple points of view and from multiple perspectives However we consider all these to be highly inadequate and grossly deficient on two grounds because they do not cover the end to end process from contextualization of knowledge to communication and universalization or ubiquitization of knowledge but they are also innately and inherently biased towards commercializable products and practical technology not the knowledge creation process itself which is so essential to the escalation of scientific and cultural activity They must also be naturally be branded as Eurocentric given the fact that much of the knowledge production processes particularly in the social sciences have been centered around the western hemisphere with minimal to no tangible outputs from other parts of the world This is because the west has thus far ruled the roost in theoretical and conceptual knowledge in all facets of human knowledge but particularly in various fields of what people consider to be the social sciences It is there highly naturally and highly obvious that multiple data sets were not adequately considered or considered at all in the process of theorization or theory formulation and generation American Book Publishing Record ,2000 The Research Process Gary D. Throughout the 20th century numerous explanations for crime and deviance have emerged that have been offered as better explanations than other theories and perspectives Yet the impact of criminological theorizing on public policy remained insignificant In this situation Michael Gottfredson and Travis Hirschi presented their book A General Theory of Crime and suggested self control theory Their theory arrived on the scene with a make up of seriousness objectivity and truth which seemingly flattered politics since it was taken as to justify the status quo of the criminal justice system Whereas the popularity of self control theory has certainly sparked an enormous interest in the empirical examination of the theory the amount of critique remained limited The study Beyond self control is a first attempt to remedy this situation The author works back through theoretical analysis to the logical presuppositions of self control theory and assesses their validity in light of current data and understandings This methodological endeavour eventually brings to light that Gottfredson and Hirschi s book on self control theory contains more criminological wisdom than acknowledged by most scholars in criminology Parliamentary Debates (Hansard).
