The Candy of the App World

Instagram is an American photo and video-sharing social networking service that is owned by Facebook. There are more than 500 million users on the app today.

Instagram was created in October 2010 by Mike Krueger, a software engineer, and Kevin Systrom, a computer programmer and entrepreneur. They worked together to give rise to the new generation of social media.

This app allows users to upload photos and videos to the service, which can be edited with various filters. An account's posts can be shared publicly or with pre-approved followers. Users can browse other users' content by tags and locations, and view trending content. Users can furthermore like photos and follow other users to add their content to a feed.

Censorship of Instagram has occurred in three different countries: China, Turkey and North Korea. Instagram has been blocked by China following the 2014 Hong Kong protests because a lot of videos and photos are posted. However, Hong Kong was not affected as they maintain a special administrative region of China.

Turkey is additionally known for its authoritarian internet censorship and periodically blocks social media including Instagram.

Lastly, North Korea authorities blocked Instagram to prevent photos of a specific incident from being shared around the country. This incident was a fire that happened in the Koryo Hotel in 2015. The North Korean government is known for limiting internet accessibility. Internet is available by permission, but strictly limited and primarily used solely for government purposes.
