

When you are given a pedigree diagram of human pedigree with quantitative characters, remember that the mode of inheritance is not always dominant-recessive. In such cases, the following guidelines are helpful: parents of "normal" state children are usually heterozygous; and if you are given the number of children and their sex, you should also consider whether the children's sex is affected. When you are given an inheritance problem, consider:

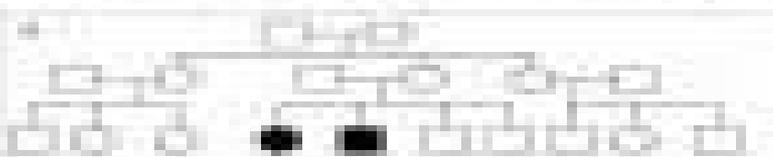

When the inheritance is dominant:

Parents: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - heterozygous (one normal, one affected) - unaffected parents can not heterozygous state 	Children: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - every affected child has at least one affected parent - unaffected children heterozygous/normal
---	--

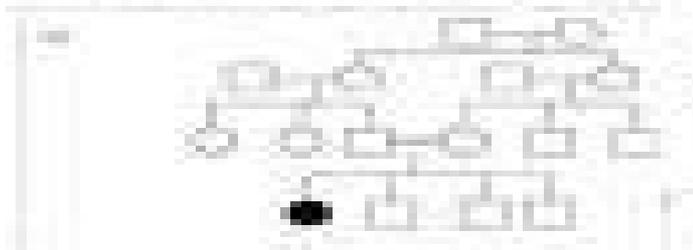

When the inheritance is recessive:

Parents: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - are heterozygous/normal - heterozygous/normal affected - can carry gene
--	--

1. Sketch of the pedigree showing the mode of inheritance is suggested within the above description.

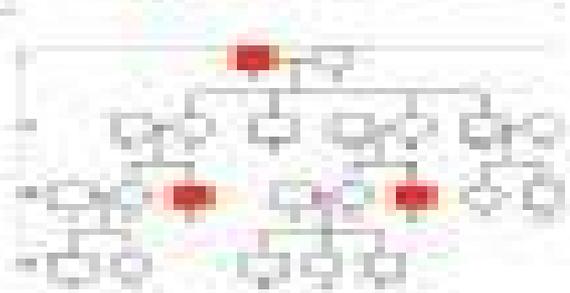

- Autosomal dominant
- affected offspring (children) of affected parents
- affected carrier (heterozygous) of affected state

- affected carrier
- unaffected carrier (heterozygous)
- heterozygous with affected state (carrier)

- Autosomal recessive
- heterozygous and one normal parent
- unaffected carrier (heterozygous) of affected state
