Mourning on Mobile Media Larissa Hjorth, 2025-11-11 How our mourning rituals on mobile media reflect our social cultural and emotional lives From Instagram eulogies of human and animal kin to witnessing mass human destruction on TikTok mobile media practices play a significant role in contemporary grieving memorializing and mourning rituals in an age of permanent crisis Our devices bear witness to the intimate affective embodied and collective ways we mourn in and through contemporary media In Mourning on Mobile Media Larissa Hjorth aims to understand the role of mobile media mourning rituals as a reflection of our lives As disasters pandemics and war become more commonplace in and through mobile devices as affective witnesses how can we learn from mourning practices as a reflection of contemporary media culture The author argues that through these micronarratives from eulogies about lost kin to more existential elegies about a loss of habit we can connect enhance kinship and create hope in response to the overwhelming sense of crisis we face today

Kemp, 2015-10-16 This title takes a comprehensive approach exploring the physical social psychological and spiritual dimensions of death dying and bereavement Through personal stories from real people Death Dying and Bereavement provides readers with a context for understanding their changing encounters with such difficult concepts The Tattoo Project Deborah Davidson, 2016-12-15 Disrupting commonly held notions about who gets tattooed and why The Tattoo Project describes illustrates and celebrates the social significances of commemorative tattoos Written by scholars from various disciplines as well as by community members and practitioners this edited collection considers the meanings people make from their experiences of love loss trauma resilience and change and why they choose to inscribe those meanings on their bodies This methods based text also examines the process of building a community contributed digital archive of tattoo photos and stories the result of which inspired the contributions to this book Writing at the intersections between the public and the private the authors consider the production and mobilization of knowledge across communities disciplines and space Featuring beautiful tattoo photography personal narratives from project participants and original poetry by Priscila Uppal The Tattoo Project is a novel read that bridges the gap between academic and popular audiences This timely collection is a valuable resource for courses across the social sciences and humanities and for anyone interested in tattoos and their significance Redesigning Grief Gabriela Carina Di Sarli, 2021 Grief while one of the most universal human experiences can lead to long lasting mental health issues for some if the loss was sudden or violent Even in so called normal grief an individual will experience a huge disruption to their life Web 2 0 marked the evolution of users from passive consumers of content to active participants who generate content and dialogue with other users through social media In this digitally mediated age a person will generate massive amounts of data in the form of photos videos audio documents chats and other files which will become their digital legacy postmortem The objectives of this research were to 1 understand the foundation of modern grief theory 2 investigate the ways in which the internet and computing have transformed archiving rituals post loss and 3 critically analyze the designer s role in shaping the experience of grief online In this ethnographic study participants were asked questions surrounding their current mourning practices and how they handle the digital legacy of their loved ones Fieldwork with bereaved users revealed that in addition to physical crafting digital crafting has emerged as a common practice due to a large number of conversations and interactions being digitally mediated Digital crafting in the context of bereavement can be described as the act of gathering editing curating and archiving a variety of digital materials for the purpose of record keeping remembering sharing and future bequeathing A speculative design project is presented to bring attention to the role that designers play in the experience of the bereaved and challenge them to consider new ways to facilitate connections between the bereaved and deceased through digital media British Widows of the First World War Andrea Hetherington, 2018-04-30 Widows of the Great War is the first major account of the experience of women who had to cope with the death of their husbands during the conflict and then rebuild their lives It explores each stage of their bereavement from the shock of receiving the news that their husband had been killed through grief and mourning to the practical issues of compensation and a widow s pension The way in which the state and society treated the widows during this process is a vital

theme running through the book as it reveals in vivid detail how the bureaucracy of war helped and hindered them as they sought to come to terms with their loss Andrea Hetherington also describes often overlooked aspects of bereavement and she features many telling first hand accounts from the widows themselves which show how they saw their situation and how they reacted to it Her study gives us a fascinating insight into the way in which the armed services and the government regarded war widows during the early years of the twentieth century

Online Afterlives Davide Sisto,2020-09-01 How digital technology from Facebook tributes to QR codes on headstones is changing our relationship to death Facebook is the biggest cemetery in the world with countless acres of cyberspace occupied by snapshots videos thoughts and memories of people who have shared their last status updates Modern society usually hides death from sight as if it were a character flaw and not an ineluctable fact But on Facebook and elsewhere on the internet we can t avoid death digital ghosts electronic traces of the dead appear at our click or touch On the Internet at least death has once again become a topic for public discourse In Online Afterlives Davide Sisto considers how digital technology is changing our relationship to death Sisto describes the various modes of digital survival after biological death including Facebook tributes chatbots programmed to speak in the voice of a dead person and QR codes on headstones and discusses their philosophical ramifications Sisto reports on such phenomena as the Tweet Hereafter a website that collects people s last tweets the intimacy of sending a WhatsApp message to someone who has died and digital cremation the deactivation of a dead person s account Because we can mingle with the dead online almost as we mingle with the living he warns we may find it difficult to distinguish communication at a distance from communication with the dead The digital afterlife has restored the communal dimension of death rescuing both mourners and the mourned from social isolation A society willing to engage with death and mortality Sisto argues is a more balanced and mature society
