Properties of Matter

Properties of Matter

QUESTIONS

Are you able to describe, how these questions are asked?

- Why, according to you, are all things grouped together?
- Why are substances and mixtures classified together?

What Are Physical Properties?

Start with the table on the right below as you go to a well-stocked grocery store to find various properties.

If physical properties are characteristics that can be observed without changing the identity of the substance, then the properties of an object can only be observed. For example, you can identify an object's color, shape, size, or weight. In general, the properties of an object are determined by the properties of the materials the object is made of.

Many of the physical properties of materials that make up objects can be measured. These properties include weight, length, temperature, and the ability to conduct heat and electricity.

Some physical properties depend on how much of a material you have. In other words, a large amount of a material may have different properties than a smaller amount of the material. Other physical properties do not depend on how much of the material you have. They show that no matter how large or small something is, it has the same physical property or always has more

LEARNING OBJECTIVE
