Andrew H Van de Ven Carlson School of Management University of Minnesota Entrepreneurial activity provides profound positive benefits across an important set of measures of social and economic well being much of it concentrated in new economic sectors such as information technology Yet even though entrepreneurship has been shown to provide many benefits it is surprising that there has not been a systematic study of the entrepreneurial process The Handbook of Entrepreneurial Dynamics The Process of Business Creation fills this gap by offering theories ideas and measures that can be used to explore and understand the factors that encompass and influence the creation of new businesses The chapters in the handbook provide the rationale for questionnaires used in the Panel Study of Entrepreneurial Dynamics PSED The PSED is a research program that was initiated to provide systematic reliable and generalizable data on important features of the new business creation process The PSED includes information on the proportion and characteristics of the adult population involved in efforts to start businesses the activities and characteristics that comprise the nature of the business start up process and the proportion and characteristics of those business start up efforts that actually become new businesses The handbook also describes the PSED data collection process provides documentation of the interview schedules codebooks data preparation and weighting scheme as well as offers examples of how analyses of PSED data might be conducted The authors identify specific measures that can be used to operationalize theory as well as provide evidence from the PSED data sets on these measures reliability and validity The Handbook of Entrepreneurial Dynamics is ideal for a sizeable audience including graduate students academics and librarians in schools of business and management who need a comprehensive reference on business creation In addition researchers and policy makers at the federal state and local level will find this an invaluable reference covering all of the factors involved in new venture formation Key Features Considers categories of data not available prior to the PSED Includes a comprehensive overview of theories about new business formation Provides demographics of nascent entrepreneurs Analyzes the cognitive characteristics of nascent entrepreneurs Explores all of the processes of new business formation

Audretsch, 2021-12-27 This book aims to provide new approaches to analysing and thinking about how entrepreneurial ecosystems develop and evolve over time as well as shed light on the relatively unexplored area of entrepreneurship ecosystem dynamics The concept of entrepreneurial ecosystems has emerged as a framework to understand the nature of places in which entrepreneurial activity flourishes Time is fundamental to the analysis of the dynamics of an entrepreneurial ecosystem New firm creation survival growth and demise all occur within a temporal context that is over and within time Systems approaches to research invariably model the influential effects of the actors and elements that shape re shape maintain shift and change the system itself An entrepreneurial ecosystem point of view therefore is inherently time dependent and provides an analytical framework that reveals how the number and diversity of entrepreneurial actors situated in a place and time influence the creation of new firms their survival growth and ultimately the stability of markets and industry in a time and place Whether for better or worse the historic and present time dimensions underpin the functioning and trajectory of entrepreneurial ecosystem performances and how they are shaped over time Each chapter in this edited volume outlines a particular perspective and or a unique case drawn from a range of countries that collectively reveal the dynamics of an ever changing entrepreneurial ecosystem The chapters were originally published as a special issue of the journal Entrepreneurship and Regional Development

The Dynamics of Entrepreneurship Erik Dahmén,Leslie Hannah,Israel M. Kirzner,1994-01-01 Dynamic Entrepreneurship Katja Rusinovic,2006 Annotation The nature of immigrant entrepreneurship is changing in Dutch society Nowadays many immigrant entrepreneurs start businesses in producer and personal services instead of more traditional sectors such as retail or hotel and catering At the same time a growing number of second generation immigrants are setting up their own firms in the Netherlands These second generation immigrants born and or raised in the receiving country are following different trajectories in comparison with first generation immigrant entrepreneurs indeed displaying a move away from traditional immigrant niches Yet studies on second generation immigrant entrepreneurs remain limited in both the Dutch and international literature on this subject This study presents one of the first explicit comparisons between first and second generation self employed immigrants The embeddedness of immigrants in local and transnational networks and the dynamics of the markets in which these entrepreneurs are active are examined based on in depth interviews with immigrant entrepreneurs in Dutch cities In doing so this study provides a vivid longitudinal view of first and second generation immigrant entrepreneurs their incorporation into Dutch society their businesses and business development s This title can be previewed in Google Books <http://books.google.com/books/vid/ISBN9789053569726> This title is available in the OAPEN Library <http://www.oapen.org> The Entrepreneurship Dynamic Claudia Bird Schoonhoven, Elaine Romanelli, 2001 Scholars and popular writers have written a great deal about entrepreneurs and the formation of new companies but they have not succeeded in predicting when and where large numbers of new organizations will emerge This volume attempts from the viewpoint of the interdisciplinary field of organization studies to answer two major questions about entrepreneurship First what are the conditions that prompt the founding of large numbers of new organizations or entirely new industries Second what are the real and significant effects of such entrepreneurial activities on existing industries economies and societies The authors emphasize that new organizations do not emerge full blown from the idiosyncratic minds of individual entrepreneurs Their ideas for new organizations their ability to acquire capital and other essential resources and their likelihood of survival as entrepreneurs derive from the contexts in which they live and work At the same time new organizations fundamentally and immediately transform their contexts The first part of the book explores the mental models that founders of new companies bring with them from previous experiences the ways in which their ideas come not only from the companies in which they work but from the surrounding organizational communities and the importance of local and regional dynamics in nurturing innovative communities Other papers in this section shift perspective from geographic communities to other contexts the university the knowledge industry and the technology cycle The second part of the book explores the role of entrepreneurial activity in the transformation of contexts and the evolution of industries focusing on the processes and tools that entrepreneurs use to legitimate new organizational populations and the collateral industries and communities that build up around new organizational populations aiding in the development of new companies
