age and it recommends that the Government should reconsider the Tomlinson proposals for a broader diploma based system for 14-19 year old students based on the International Baccalaureate. This would ensure that students receive a more rounded education and are not made to over specialise before they are able to see the merits of studying science and mathematics. Concerns are also raised about the shortage of science teachers particularly specialist physics and chemistry teachers, the quality of careers advice in schools and the importance of practical science in schools. The Art & Science of Learning Design Marcelo Maina, Brock Craft, Yishay Mor, 2015-07-21. We live in an era defined by a wealth of open and readily available information and the accelerated evolution of social mobile and creative technologies. The provision of knowledge once a primary role of educators is now devolved to an immense web of free and readily accessible sources. Consequently educators need to redefine their role not just from sage on the stage to guide on the side but as more and more voices insist as designers for learning. The call for such a repositioning of educators is heard from leaders in the field of technology enhanced learning (TEL) and resonates well with the growing culture of design based research in Education. However it is still struggling to find a foothold in educational practice. We contend that the root causes of this discrepancy are the lack of articulation of design practices and methods along with a shortage of tools and representations to support such practices, a lack of a culture of teacher as designer among practitioners and insufficient theoretical development. The Art and Science of Learning Design ASLD explores the frameworks, methods and tools available for teachers, technologists and researchers interested in designing for learning. Learning Design theories arising from findings of research are explored drawing upon research and practitioner experiences. It then surveys current trends in the practices, methods and methodologies of Learning Design. Highlighting the translation of theory into practice, this book showcases some of the latest tools that support the learning design process itself. REVISE Salters Nuffield AS/A Level Biology Revision Guide Steve Wooley, Steve Adams, 2016. The book is arranged in four parts. Part A consists of two papers, one on situated learning and the other on implementation of new curricula. Part B contains descriptions of five major curricula in different countries, why they were introduced, how they were developed and implemented and evaluation results. Part C gives descriptions of three projects that are of smaller scale and their materials are used as interventions in other more conventional curricula There is also a contribution on some fundamental research where modules of work are written to examine how best to design context based curricula Finally Part D consist of two chapters one summarising some of the findings that came out of the chapters in the three earlier parts and the second looks at the future Which A levels? 2019 Alison Dixon,2019-05-28 Making the right choice of A levels is crucial Not only will it affect your enjoyment of studying over the next two years but it also has implications for your choice of career further training or higher education options The tenth edition of this student friendly guide has been revised and updated and includes study and employment options after 16 as well as at degree level It also contains information on apprenticeships an increasingly popular alternative to full time higher education Each subject entry covers What and how you study Which A levels fit well together for competitive courses and careers Related higher education courses Career and training options after A levels and degree courses Alternative qualifications such as the International Baccalaureate
