Modern Business Process Automation Arthur H. M. ter Hofstede,Wil M. P. van der Aalst,Michael Adams,Nick Russell,2009-11-18 The eld of Business Process Management BPM is marred by a seemingly e less sequence of proposed industry standards Contrary to other elds e g civil or electronic engineering these standards are not the result of a widely supported consolidationofwell understoodandwell establishedconceptsandpractices Inthe BPM domain it is frequently the case that BPM vendors opportunistically become involved in the creation of proposed standards to exert or maintain their in uence and interests in the eld Despite the initial fervor associated with such standardi tion activities it is no less frequent that vendors either choose to drop their support for standards that they earlier championed on an opportunistic basis or elect only to partially support them in their commercial offerings Moreover the results of the standardization processes themselves are a concern BPM standards tend to deal with complex concepts yet they are never properly de ned and all too often not informed by established research The result is a plethoraof languagesand tools with no consensus on conceptsand their implem tation They also fail to provide clear direction in the way in which BPM standards should evolve One can also observe a dichotomy between the business side of BPM and its technical side While it is clear that the application of BPM will fail if not placed in a proper business context it is equally clear that its application will go nowhere if it remains merely a motivational exercise with schemas of business processes hanging on the wall gathering dust
